LOVE TRAGEDY ON COLLEGE CAMPUS

JORDAN SAYS GOD TOLD HIM TO KILL WIFE

Chester S. Jordan told Dr. William McDonald, an alienist witness for the defence in the former's trial for the alleged murder of his wife, that while his wife lay unconscious on the floor of the kitchen he got a flatiron, bit her four or five times on the head and then cut her throat, according to the testimony given to-day by Dr. McDonald.

The defence regarded as a great victory the decision of the court to allow Jordan's story which he told to Dr. McDonald to be related to the jury. Judge Stevens cautioned the jury that they were not to accept the statements made by Jordan as the truth, but only as evidence that might show his mental condition.

District-Attorney Higgins caused a sensation in court by charging that Jordan's story that he was the instrument of God in killing his wife and that he cut her body into twelve pieces in accordance with the words of the devils in the nineteenth chapter of Judges, was a "frame-up" by two cunning New York gentlemen."

Says Jordan Played a Part.

The District-Attorney referred to Lawyer William F. S. Hart, who was formerly in the case for the defence, and an alienist brought to Boston by Mr. Hart. Higgins said that these men told Jordan what to say and that he as a play-actor simulated the rest.

Jordan, according to Dr. McDonald, said he was not afraid of the electric chair, because he had been told death by electricity did not hurt. His favorite Scripture passages, he said, are the twenty-third psalm and the nineteenth chapter of Judges—two very dissimilar parts of the Bible.

Jordan's plan, as he confided it to the alienist, was to throw the various parts of his wife's body from the bridges over the Charles, one at a time, into the river.

The courtroom was jammed again today. Hundreds were unable to get in.

Dr. McDonald's Story.

Dr. William McDonald took the stand and was cautioned by Judge Stevens to bear in mind the exact phraseology of the order of the Court. Dr. McDonald said:

"The first time I examined Jordan was on October 11th in the fall. Jordan greeted me cheerfully. I said to Jordan, 'Will you tell me what your religious be-

MYSTERY NOW IN NEW LIGHTING DEAL

A new element of mystery came to-day relative to the signing of lighting contract when Mayor Hibbard made public a letter received at his office Monday, but which he says was misplaced so that he did not get it until to-day.

It was from President James L. Richards of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company, reiterating the opinion advanced in a previous communication that it would be unwise to the city to let a long term contract and stating that his company had been denied the privilege of making tests of the Magnetite lamps.

The Mayor admitted that had he received the communication before he signed the contract he might have given it further consideration but it was turned over to Secretary White and in some way was misplaced.

Piqued at the storm of protest, Superintendent of Streets Guy C. Emerson is preparing a statement about the investigations he conducted before the signatures of the Mayor and himself were affixed.

"I believe that the interests of the city are well protected in the contract and have no apologies to make for having it signed," he says. "I had the assistance of Expert Puffer, and with the facts before me I signed the contract, and I feel that I am as competent to judge of its merits as any who have uttered criticism."

It is understood that the signing of the contract will be aired at the meeting of the Common Council to-night.

LEGISLATURE TO SIT IN MORNING

Fearful that the recent delays in legislative business may result in lengthening the session until well into the Summer, Speaker Walker to-day called his Committee on Rules together and arranged for morning sessions at 10:30 o'clock, beginning Tuesday. Night sessions may be held in order to prorogue the Legislature before July 4.

GEN. HAINS ON STAND SAYS SON IS INSANE

FLUSHING, L. I., April 29.—To rugged old General Hains, the hero of three wars, was to-day given the duty of firing the first gun in the defensive battle which his lawyers hope will result in the vindication of his son, Captain Peter C. Hains, Jr., now on trial for the murder of William E. Annis.

It was the father's own wish that he should not be spared in his examination. The whole tragic story of the destruction of his son's home and part he himself played in the climax that came of it should be told to the twelve men who are to decide Captain Hains's fate.

He told of his son's marriage to Claudia Lindy, and in spite of Prosecutor Hewitt's objection was permitted to tell of his son's strange actions on the night of the shooting the night at Guyama in the Spanish-American War.

"He was always getting in my way," declared the old soldier. "I told him to retire, and he laughed and told me I was to wear the white helmet I had on at the time.

"He was so insistent I had to tell him if he did not correct his actions I would have to order him placed under arrest."

Nervous as a Boy.

Mr. McIntyre had the General tell that Captain Hains as aboy was nervous, irritable and susceptible to fits of passion. He had often had nightmares "and cried out in his sleep. In such fits he would strike out with his hands and cry out, 'Oh, oh!'

"One day in the Spring of 1881, when Peter was eight or nine years old, he and his mother and myself were on the schooner Pharos, a boat of about 210 tons. He brought to my cabin. He had fallen through a hatchway and was wounded in the head. He was as stiff as though dead and he remained so for several hours."

The witness said that following this accident the boy was subject to severe headaches for a long period. Stiff Bones, he said, would irritate him very much.

Captain Hains Turns Pale.

After telling of Captain Hains assigning to the Philippines and his return, the witness took up the meeting at the Hotel Astor when he told his son of Claudia's action with Annis.

"He said that he did not think she had been more than indiscreet," said the General.

"I told him that she had been worse than indiscreet.

The General then related how he told the captain of his wife's disappearance for a week and her illness.

"The captain then said to me, 'If you knew about this it was your duty to tell me before.'

"The captain's face drew chalky white as his father spoke.

"The next morning was Sunday," resumed the General. "I went over to Fort Hamilton to my son's home. As I entered he was on the second floor at the head of the stairs. His eyes were protruding, his facial muscles twitching. He half crouched, and he was not a rational man. He took me into his wife's room. She was lying on her bed."

District Attorney Hewitt fought to keep out the confession of Annis.

"If all of this bears on the alleged insanity," said the Judge, "you must give me evidence enough to show that he was in a mentally impaired condition at the time."

It will establish that insanity is in the family, replied Mr. McIntyre.

"General, who was your father?"

"Reuben Hains."

"He suffered from insanity?"

"He was insane at the time of his death." the old soldier replied.

Alienist Gives Testimony.

General Hains was then withdrawn and Dr. L. S. Manson, an expert for the defence, was given put on to give evidence sufficient to bring about the admission of the confession.

Mr. McIntyre tried in vain to get in the confession of Mrs. Hains, but was ruled out.

"You must give further evidence of the defendant's insanity before you can bring out this," the court declared.

GETS $5,000 IN SUIT ON STOCK

Walter B. Farmer was awarded $5,000 by Judge Braley in the Supreme Court today in his suit against Walter H. Keith to recover for losses in a stock transaction. Keith informed a note of N. J. Gliddon for $5,000 in March, 1908, the plaintiff said, and Gliddon pledged 200 shares of the Washington Incandescent Company to Keith. The latter sold 100 of the shares to Farmer for $5,000, said, Farmer said, the stock proved worthless.

LOS ANGELES, April 29.—Nat Goodwin has purchased the Herrey sixty-acre orange grove near Fullerton, paying $66,000 for it. The ranch is considered one of the most attractive in that section.

ATHLETE KILLS SMITH GIRL AND HIMSELF

Because she refused to marry him, Miss Helen Ayer Marden, daughter of Frank W. Marden, a wealthy Boston oil importer, a senior at Smith College, was shot and killed to-day on Smith College campus by Porter MacDougal Smith of Chicago, a Dartmouth graduate and athlete. Smith shot himself dead after firing three bullets into the victim of their college romance. The girl lived but a few hours.

One of the pathetic features of the tragedy is that Miss Marden and her sister, Louise, were college chums of Smith's sister, Emily, also an undergraduate at Smith.

Miss Marden, who was a charming undergraduate of Smith College, eighteen years old, and who lived at No. 87 Beaton street, Somerville, had been engaged to marry Smith, who was connected with a Chicago shoe factory. She broke off the engagement, however, on Christmas Day and refused to renew it, despite Smith's constant urging, that he shot her.

The chapel bells were ringing at Smith College when Miss Marden came from the gymnasium on the campus and started toward her rooms. Smith, who had been pacing the sidewalk in front of Lawrence Hall, where he had been awaiting the girl, overtook her at the campus gate. They were seen to converse animatedly and then retrace their steps across the campus.

Fires at Close Range.

Near Students' Hall, white Smith College girls were assembling for chapel and the campus was thronged with students. Smith halted the young woman and, before she could realize his intention, fired a bullet into her right temple at such close range that the flame burned her hair.

The girl gave an agonizing scream and reeled. Before she fell Smith had fired again, and as she lay on the ground at his feet he shot her the third time, the bullet entering her back.

Then, before any of the scores of girls and men who started hurriedly toward him could interfere, he shot himself in the left temple and fell dead.

Patrick Hennessey, a workman on the new library building, who had seen the shooting, "ran to the girl's side and, aided by some girl students, carried Miss Marden's bleeding form into Students' Hall. She was unconscious.

She was hurried to Dickinson Hospital,

DYNAMITE GIVES CLEW TO ROBBERY

Through the finding of five sticks of dynamite and two fuses in a drill concreted in the Boston & Northern car barn at Lower Swampscott, Superintendent Frank Wilkins and Foreman Tyler Mudge of the street car company, expect to find the clew to the men who, in September, 1906, blew the safe in the barn, wrecking the structure and making away with $600 or $700. One year later, almost to the day, the safe had been opened for some $400 more. No clew was found. Two months ago the money bags taken from the safe were found in the partition of the barn.

To-day's discovery of enough heavy explosive to completely wreck the barn was made by workmen who are engaged in remodeling the structure. Arrests are expected.

ALDRICH TO PULL DOWN PAPER TARIFF

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Senator Aldrick will offer a tariff amendment increasing the duty on print paper from two dollars to five dollars per ton. This is a dollar lower than the present tariff. The House put wood pulp, under certain conditions, on the free list, but that does not meet with the approval of the Senators from Maine and they are insisting on a duty, and the understanding is that the Rhode Island Senator has consented to offer the amendment. Senator Rayner said to-day that the uncertainty which exists over the tariff matter has produced a condition that is now worse than panic and suspense which is detrimental to prosperity. The pending bill, he characterized as one for protection and no other purpose.

RIVERS OF DEAD FLOAT BY WARSHIP

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 29.—Nadir Pasha, a giant Nubian, who was second eunuch of the palace under the deposed Sultan, was hanged at dawn to-day on Galata bridge. Death sentence for plotting first was passed upon him by court-martial.

The specific charge against Nadir was that he instigated the mutiny of the troops on April 13. He was reported to be intensely ambitious, subtle minded, and insusable to the sufferings of others. He was one of the trio that formed Abdul Hamid's private cabinet under the old regime. The other members of the cabinet were Izzet Pasha and Fehim Pasha. The former, the Sultan's secretary, is now in hiding in London, and the latter, who was head of the Sultan's spy system, has been assassinated somewhere in Russia.

More Liberal Measures.

All the foreign sovereign heads of state have sent congratulations to the new Sultan upon his accession to the throne. An official notice has been published stating that henceforth the inhabitants of Constantinople will be permitted on the streets at night until 10:30 o'clock. Improvements commemorative of Saturday's events will be erected.

The new era of reform came to-day with the announcement of the new Sultan, Mehmed V., that he intends reorganizing the Turkish court. It will be remodeled under the Western European style, to be economical and without the extravagant luxury which has heretofore marked the Oriental government.

Scores of attaches of the Yildiz Kiosk were removed from the civil list to-day by the new Sultan. This was one of his first acts in the way of financial curtailment. Hundreds of supernumeraries followed from other government departments. The force which will occupy the imperial palace under the new regime is said to be about the size of that at the White House in Washington. In all several thousand persons were summarily dismissed.

River Choked With Bodies.

The river at Mersina is carrying down hundreds of bodies of men, women and children. Corpses are drifting about the Italian warship in the harbor. They unfortunately were thrown into the river in the country above the city.

At Mersina Saturday, proceeded to Adana, where they resumed the wholesale murdering of Armenians, and the burning of their property. Thousands were burned to death, while those who attempted to escape were shot down by the troops. The destruction of the town of Adana is complete. The loss of life in the whole province of Adana is estimated at 20,000.

The Christian village of Bakijeh has been completely destroyed by the Mohammedan mobs. The torch was applied and scarcely a building remains. Messages from Hadjin say the situation there is desperate and that no relief is in sight. The Christians are besieged have only enough food to last a day or two.

VICTIM OF TRAIN, MICHAEL CLEARY

Michael Cleary, a railroad employe, is the man whose mangled body was found lying on the inward bound track at the Huntington avenue station of the Boston & Albany road early to-day. He was identified at the City Hospital morgue. He was forty years old and lived at No. 26 Riverdale street, Allston. It is believed from what he was struck by a train while walking on the track, or tried to jump from a moving car and fell under the wheels.

HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, April 29.—Yankee survivors of yesterday's massacre lined up against the "Terrible Trio" Red Sox to-day for the final game of the series.

In spite of the chilly air a good sized crowd turned out to see the contest.

Politics interfering under the ruling his men got yesterday at the hand of the Red Legs was out for blood, intending to turn the tables on the locals and make a successful farewell bow to the baseball public of Boston. Lake was as tickled as a kid with top boots over the way he has gotten his club going and expected another winning session this afternoon.

Elberfeld, who has been out of the game for a couple of days on account of a twisted ankle, which he received while running the bases in the second Yank-Red Sox game, skipped around third base in a lively style, showing no traces of his injuries.

SNOWSTORM SAVES GIANTS FROM DOVES

NEW YORK, April 29.—The weatherman got tangled up in his weather forecast to-day and handed out a bit of the Arctic brand which quavered all chances of pulling off the fourth and final contest between the Giants and the Doves at the Polo grounds.

All during the early morning snowflakes filled the air and covered the ground with a white layer. The congealed atmosphere made matters worse and the fans shivered their hands up in despair at the prospects of not seeing the diamond battle which was on the tapis and both teams rested up. To-morrow the Doves cross the bridge to engage the Trolley Dodgers in a series.

MONTSERRAT DEPOT TO BE USED BY TAFT

BEVERLY, April 29.—It was decided today that President Taft will come and go from Montserrat station during his occupation of the Sixteen acre cottage at Burgess Point, Beverly Cove. This station is secluded and within four minutes' ride of the Sixteen estate.

The Boston & Maine Railroad has made arrangements with the Harrington Land Company to lay a sidetrack 600 feet long for the President's private train. Executive headquarters will be established in the Board of Trade rooms on Cabot street.

The President is expected here between the first and fifth of June, although Mrs. Taft probably will come earlier.

BIG STATEN ISLAND HOTEL A FIRE WRECK

NEW YORK, April 29.—The Terra Marine Inn at Huguenot, one of the largest hotels on Staten Island, was destroyed by fire to-day, the loss being about $200,000. Before the New York firemen reached the scene the hotel was doomed. The big glass dome over the dining room, one of the finest around New York, fell with a crash and two volunteer firemen were hurt. A fireman said that he was struck by a timb while walking on the track, or tried to jump from a moving car and fell under the wheels.

FLYER DITCHED; 40 PASSENGERS HURT

The Boston & Albany's New England express, a heavy Pullman train east-bound from Albany, was ditched at 8:10 a. m. today one-half mile west of Palmer depot while speeding forty miles an hour on its way to Boston. The accident was caused by a split rail.

Forty passengers were injured when the last six cars were toppled over and thrown flat on the broad embankment alongside the track. One of these was the dining car, in which many passengers were eating breakfast. The other five cars were sleepers, in which the passengers had arisen after their night's travel.

SERIOUSLY INJURED.

CASEY, F. A., Billerica, back hurt.
PEELE, H. F., Brooklyn, N. Y., knees hurt.

Put on Emergency Brake.

The New England special, sometimes called the Southwestern Express, is one of the finest through trains on the Boston & Albany system. It carries Pullman sleeping cars from St. Louis, Cincinnati and Buffalo on its east-bound run to Boston. At Pittsfield the dining car is added.

The train left Albany at 4:30 a. m. today, the engine drawing ten cars. It arrived in Springfield on schedule time, 7:50, and continued toward Palmer, the next stop.

One half-mile west of Palmer depot there are two sharp curves on the road. One is where a high cliff borders the track for several rods. Beyond that is a point where the track skirts the Quaboag River.

The train covered half-way between the cliff and river, at a place where the track is bordered by a wide embankment of dirt, a good place for a train to be ditched if ditched at all.

Just as the train approached this embankment, a split rail whipped out of

DREADNOUHTS PUT ENGLISH TAXES UP

LONDON, April 29.—An outline of the government's new program, given in the Commons to-day by Chancellor Lloyd George, includes provision for four Dreadnoughts, entailing a four-cent increase in the income tax for two years. Old age pensions will be extended to embrace the pauper class, and a scheme of insurance to guard workers against non-employment will be put into effect. The treasury will make a $1,000,000 grant for agriculture. It is proposed to raise $82,500,000 by extra taxation, and the tax on the sale of sliding scale from $30 to $200. Asoline will be taxed for four cents a gallon. This extra tax will bear heavily on American tourists.

ALL LOBSTER RECORDS ARE SMASHED TO-DAY

This is the biggest lobster day on record. More were landed in Boston than ever before since records have been kept. Two Nova Scotia vessels unloaded 237,000 of them, and prices broke to fourteen and sixteen cents. The steamers which had them for freight were the A. W. Perry and the Boston, and their cargoes aggregated 450,000, which shows the lobsters averaged of fair size. There were big lots of lobsters also received from American boats, and more came here by railroad shipment. There were 500 crates filled with these shellfish on the Perry and 1,000 on the Boston. The crews made big money out of the catches.

place. The engine and first four cars kept to the rails, but the last nine cars went off en to the right, bumping along with successive shocks to the frightened passengers.

Engineer J. Wilhite hammered on the emergency brakes, but the train bounded along for 500 feet further, when the coupling parted between the fourth and fifth cars from the engine.

Passengers Thrown About.

There was a crash, a crumbling of the cars behind as the wheels bumped along the sleepers and then came the smashing of the sleepers on the right side as the cars scraped along.

The next moment the cars stopped and the passengers picked themselves up from the corners and from under the seats, where many of them had been thrown by the sudden stop. It was soon discovered that no one had been killed, and that all the injured had dragged themselves out and were rubbing their bruises or treating their cuts without assistance.

The local officials at once sent for medical aid from Palmer and Springfield, but when the doctors arrived they found that first aid had been rendered the wounded and that their services were confined to binding up the wounds professionally.

The westbound train was then cleared, a following train was switched over on it, and picking up the passengers from the wrecked train started for Boston at about six hours delay.

The division superintendent stated that it would take all day to clear the east bound track.

William F. Corcoran of Boston was the conductor in charge.

Drag Women from Cars.

E. J. Ingleby of Oakfield, N. Y., who was in one of the overturned coaches, said:

"My whole left side is wrenched from being thrown against the seats of the car. In ordinary words the feeling that came over me would be almost impossible. All I know is that the train was going at the rate of forty miles an hour. Suddenly the cars left the rails and we could hear them going along the sleepers for a distance.

"Then every car turned over on the embankment, throwing passengers in all directions. Men, women and children commenced to scream as they were dragged along. Confusion was everywhere.

"When I came to after my experience I saw attaches of the railroad company and others dragging women out of the cars. Some of them must have been seriously injured. I am glad that I came out of it alive. It's a terrible experience for anybody to go through."

MISS WHITE IS WED IN CHURCH

PARIS, April 29.—The final ceremony in the union of Miss Muriel White, daughter of Henry White, American Ambassador to France, and Count Szecsi-Pirosz of Debrau, Prussian Silesia, took place to-day in St. Joseph's Church, when the Catholic Church with its full pageantry, gave its sanction to the civil ceremony before the Mayor, which made Miss White legally a countess of the German Empire.

Efforts had been made by both families to have the marriage as unostentatious as possible, but the curiosity and interest of the gay Parisians would not be denied, and a vast crowd was lined up before the church long before the bridal parties drove up.

A notable feature of the ceremony was the absence of the Ambassador, who stayed away as a protest against the opposition of authorities refusing to concede the service of the diplomatic rank, of which he and his family are members.

The bride was attended by her niece, Miss Margaret Rutherford, daughter of Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, and Miss Lucile Beck, daughter of Secretary Bucker of the U. S. Embassy, acted as bridesmaid.

The bride was given away by her brother, Clarence White. Among the party which accompanied the bride and groom to the church were Mr. White, the Count and Countess Mensdorff, W. K. Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Rutherford Stuyvesant, Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop Rutherford and Prince von Radolin, the German Ambassador.

CUPID HIT IN AN AUTO SMASH

NEW YORK, April 29.—An automobile romance culminated happily in the Little Church Around the Corner when Miss Sara Combellina Cowen of Baltimore, a daughter of the late John K. Cowen, president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, became the bride of Charles Monson, Jr., the son of a retired capitalist of New Haven.

It was an elopement, too, for Miss Cowen eloped with Monson in Baltimore. She was coming up to New York to visit some friends, while Mr. Monson apparently informed his family that he was dropping down to town on a little business.

Both are ardent motorists. Several months ago, while touring in Europe, at a good speed in the outskirts of Washington, Miss Cowen ran into Mr. Monson's car and damaged it so badly that its engine was put out of commission.

Of course, she apologized prettily and offered to do the only thing that could be done under the circumstances—tow the disabled car back to town. She turned the wheel over to her chauffeur and took her place in the tonneau of her own machine, while Mr. Monson steered it at the end of a rope.

"I feel so sorry for him, he looked so gloomy sitting back there, that I ordered my chauffeur to wait until I could express my sympathy," she said last night in narrating the incident.

"Yes," said Mr. Monson, "and then I suggested, if you really feel very sorry, get your chauffeur to take my wheel and I'll step up there with you and run your machine."

"And we did that!" both exclaimed laughingly. They admitted that all the conversation that day on the way in to Washington was not devoted exclusively to the collision. Before they parted other automobile outings were planned—with only one machine to be used.

Guild Might Pass As the Sultan's Twin Brother

EX-GOVERNOR GUILD
As he would look wearing a fez.

THE NEW SULTAN,
Mohamed Reschad Effendi.

PHENOMENAL SOLAR HALO SEEN AT YALE

NEW HAVEN, April 29.—Scientific observation was made at Yale University of a phenomenal halo around the sun. At 1 o'clock it showed the ordinary twenty-two degrees halo very faintly, but the halo due to ice crystals like a rainbow, and known as the circumscribing oval halo, was remarkably vivid. At 1:35 the exterior circle passing through the sun and having its zenith as its centre appeared and grew stronger rapidly for about ten minutes. At its maximum the rare phenomenon was seen briefly at the opposite sun and its pair of intersecting spiral arcs.

SIX AUTOISTS ARE FINED FORS PEEDING

Six autoists, caught in a trap Sunday in Arlington, were fined in Cambridge District Court to-day for overspeeding. William E. Hudson of Jamaica Plain was fined $20. These five were med $10: William A. Webster of Cambridge, George E. Morrison of Newton Centre, Charles E. Howe of Winchester, Herbert Hapgood of Cambridge and Antonio J. Fernandes of Boston.

WANT DIVORCE? GO TO RENO —All the mismated are flocking there. Read why in next Sunday's AMERICAN.

How Guild looked when some one asked him if he was a candidate.

TAUNTON FIREMAN LOSES SALARY CASE

Judge Braley in the Supreme Court today dismissed the bill of Captain John A. Gilligan of the Taunton fire department, in which the petitioner asked that the chief engineer be ordered to pay him for a yearly salary of $1,500. The City Council of Taunton at its last meeting in December voted to increase the pay of fire captains to $1,500. The Mayor took no action on the bill, and on days later the Mayor and Council were out of office.

GUILD TO BE AMBASSADOR TO TURKEY?

News dispatches from Washington hint at the possible appointment of ex-Governor Curtis Guild to a foreign ambassadorship. The first report was to the effect that he was to be ambassador to Italy. A prompt denial was made. Some of the Governor's friends have now come to the conclusion that the best opportunity for him will be as ambassador to Turkey.

As Mr. Guild is away on a business trip, it has not been possible to secure from him a statement as to his willingness to hold down the diplomatic job at Constantinople if it should be offered to him.

At the headquarters of the Republican state machine, officials say they know nothing about the appointment, but they frankly add they have no doubt that the former Governor would be pleased to receive such distinguished recognition as the proffer of an ambassadorial position.

Apropos of the rumor of the President's consideration of ex-Governor Guild as the representative of American interests at a foreign capital, attention is called by many of the Republican politicians to the striking likeness between the new man on the Turkish throne and the man who recently abdicated the Massachusetts throne as Governor. Not only is the facial resemblance commented upon, but also the many sterling traits of character which both possess.

From a Photograph.

They Look Alike.

"Why, child with a fez on would look just like this fellow," said a prominent politician to a friend in a Beacon street home.

"Well, I should say so," said another big Republican machine man. "There's the same high brow, the same look like twins, their slight moustaches and never know the difference, the chin curves are much alike and the lips—say, that's the Guild mouth all right. The Colonel eyes are a little more on the slant, but they have something of the same kindly disposition. Put a sheet-iron smoke-pipe Guild and he would do a great imitation of Mehmed V."

Everybody in the group admitted the points of resemblance. The new Sultan sometimes wears a beard of bright red hue, but as no one ever saw the former governor with a beard, it could not be said how the two statesmen would compare with fringe adornments of the face.

The ex-Governor's friends hold that it would be a good thing for both countries if he should receive the appointment to Turkey. With Guild at Constantinople the new Sultan might ask the services with impunity and go wherever he pleased unharmed, as the common people would respect him under the mistaken impression that he was the ambassador of the great American people and political enemies would hesitate to attempt to do him personal violence for the same reason.

Proxy to New Sultan

And the former governor could easily learn the Turkish language and how to smoke a Turkish cigarette like one to the manner born, so that he could take proxy for the new ruler whenever he wanted to take a day off and see the ball game between the Old Timers and the Young Turks.

In return, it is pointed out, Mehmed V. would be tempted to grant his country many favors on the side quiet. The job pays $17,500 a year, which is $5,500 more than the governorship paid. Ex-Governor Guild is getting ahead in duty for an extended vacation, he has announced. Perhaps he may take a view of Turkey before rendering a verdict on the case.

MELROSE ELKS CUT DIDOES ON STAGE

The members of Melrose Lodge of Elks, No. 1,041, are to-day being heartily congratulated upon the success scored on the amateur production of the first minstrel show the young lodge has ever given. Melrose City Hall auditorium was well filled with an appreciative audience and the Elks didn't disappoint their friends either.

Everything was satisfactory to the crowd. The Elks had promised surprises to their friends and sure enough, they came fast and funny. There were all sorts of local quips and when the end men and Former Mayor Charles J. Barron started to "mix it up" they could hardly be heard for the roars of laughter. The choruses were well trained and the airs popular. The solo parts and the dances were funny and caused the crowd. The reception of the minstrel show to-night is bound to fill the auditorium, as many lodges of Elks are to send large delegations.

FIRST CHINAMAN AS JUSTICE OF PEACE

The first instance in the United States where a Chinaman has been vested with the authority of a justice of the peace occurred when Governor Hooper bestowed this distinction upon Charlie K. Shu of this city. Justice Shu is a native-born American, Seattle, Wash., being his native place and San Francisco that of his Chinese wife. He is about thirty-two years old. He is now a member of the importing firm of Shu, Ying, Fink & Co., one of the largest Chinese houses in Boston. He is also proprietor of a Chinese restaurant on Washington street.

TAFT CUP FOR SONDER RACES

President Taft in the Mayflower, the executive yacht, is to follow the international yacht races to be sailed off Marblehead the first week in September between American and German boats of the new 30-metre sonder class.

These matches are under the joint direction of the Eastern Yacht Club, on behalf of the American boats entered and the Kaiserlicher Yacht Club, of which the German Kaiser is the head, on behalf of the German boats. The presence of President Taft at the race is sure to gratify the Germans and may result in the Crown Prince of Germany, who owns a sonder class boat, which he sails himself, becoming an entry.

In addition to the assurance that President Taft will be present at the races, which start in Marblehead harbor in sight of the Summer White House at Beverly, the Eastern Yacht Club has received permission that the grand prize this year be known as the President Taft cup.

HOLD YOUTH FOR STEALING AUTO

Fred Marshall, aged twenty-one, giving his address as Hood Thorndyke, who was arrested in Worcester last Friday on a charge of stealing an automobile from R. A. Skinner of No. 179 Clarendon street, was held for the grand jury today by Judge Parmenter in $2,500 bonds. The police say his name is Wilpple, and that he comes from Minneapolis.

ONE DEAD IN MILLION FIRE

CHICAGO, April 29.—One man was killed, three are missing, and a score were injured, and property valued at $1,000,000 destroyed in a fire which broke out early today in Elevator B of the Illinois Central at the foot of South Water street.

The dead man was Fire Lieutenant McElliott, who was killed by falling walls. It is thought that three missing firemen are buried in the ruins.

Fanned by a stiff northeast gale, the flames and sparks were carried for blocks over the immediate neighborhood and the efforts of the firemen were concentrated in an effort to keep it from spreading.

The building was filled with wheat, corn and rye. The exact amount of grain in the structure is not known at this time and it is feared that the loss will run far over the first estimate.

The destroyed elevator was about 75 feet high, 125 feet long and 50 feet wide.

The fire originated in the basement, presumably in the boiler room.

ZIG-ZAG JOURNEY THROUGH SIBERIA

Fred Nibio, the American humorist-traveller, who has delighted large crowds at the Park Theatre by his entertaining pictorial "Walks of Travel in Distant Lands," will give another of his series of zig-zag journeys around the world tomorrow afternoon. Mr. Nibio's subject will be a zig-zag journey through Russia, from the Black Sea to Siberia.

TO-DAY'S CABLE NEWS

Up to Midnight, London Time

German Meat Deal Alarms the English.

LONDON—Germany's move to make a great meat contract with Chicago packers frightens the British, who fear that in the event of war their own supply will be shut off. The proposed meat deal is regarded as a disastrous blow to England. If a war were to break out the British fleet would find itself in a sorry plight for lack of preserved meat, and if Germany shall open up the big contract with Chicago the British Admiralty would find it impossible to renew its contract for a supply of tinned meat from Chicago.

Jews Boycott Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG—According to Count Witte, the Jewish disabilities caused a powerful body of Jewish financiers abroad to boycott Russian securities, while Russia's alienation of German financiers had led to a further contraction in dealings in these securities. The Russian debt has risen to $5,000,000,000, an increase of $1,450,000,000 in five years.

Steal $20,000 Art Works.

PARIS—Burglars have stolen from the museum at Gueret fifty-two valuable enamels and several reliquaries to the value of $20,000. The theft illustrates the lack of care in guarding provincial museums.

Heavy English Deficit.

LONDON—The treasury has issued a statement giving the balance sheet for 1908-09, with the estimated expenditures for 1909-10. It shows that the chancellor of the exchequer faces a deficit of $78,810,000. This is some $10,000,000 more than was generally anticipated.

Miss Adams to Tour Europe.

BERLIN—Charles Frohman announces that a year from now Maude Adams will make a Continental tour in a series of Barrie's plays; also in "L'Aiglon," "Twelfth Night" and "Romeo and Juliet."

De Broglie Divorce Heard.

PARIS—The divorce court heard the suit of Prince Robert de Broglie against his wife. Decision was reserved. The Princess de Broglie was Miss Estelle Alexander, of San Francisco.

Women Form Murder Gang.

ST. PETERSBURG—Eight women under arrest today at Novotaiga are thought to be a gang of murderesses. The police think they can trace at least ten murders to the band. The police say that the leader is an old woman. In the cellar of her home the body of a wealthy merchant was found. He had been lured away and murdered. His clothing was polished.

Plot Against King Peter.

VIENNA—Diplomatic advices received here today state that Servian army officers are planning to overthrow King Peter in September.

Americans in Jap Merger.

TOKIO.—The amalgamation of the American General Electric Company, the Shibaura Engineering Works and the Tokio Electric Company is announced. The American General Electric Company is a big shareholder in the Tokio company, which is now principally manufacturing electric light lamps.

London Beauty Lord's Bride.

LONDON—One of the smartest weddings of the season took place this afternoon in St. Margaret's, Westminster, when Lord Brooke and Miss Elfrida Marjorie, the daughter of Sir William Eden, were married. The bride is one of the most beautiful women in London society. The bridegroom is the heir of the Earl of Warwick's estate.

Germans Alarm British.

LONDON—German's move to make a great meat contract with Chicago packers frightens the British, who fear that in the event of war their own supply will be shut off. The proposed meat deal is regarded as a disastrous blow to England.

PUBLICITY TO BE CHECK ON GRAFTERS

The proposed city charter received a thorough analysis at the hands of William C. Free of the Committee of One Hundred in Ashmont at a meeting of the members of the Ashmont Universalist Men's Club, Mr. Free said:

"If there is anything that the dishonest, careless or lazy man shuns it is the Daylight. Publicity through the official publications of the city of every transaction which draws upon the city's treasury to an appreciable extent will open it to the light of day. The men who in years past have fattened upon padded pay-rolls, exorbitant prices and dishonest contracts will find this provision of the charter a strong deterrent."

HEARING ON CHELSEA PONY EXPRESS CASE

The Chelsea Board of Control will give a hearing at 2:30 p. m. to-morrow in the Courthouse on the remonstrance of the local W. C. T. U. against the issuance of many rigorous licenses. The city will go dry, May 1, and ten applications for express licenses have already been received.

HERE IS THE OFFICIAL TAB ON CITY'S JAGS

Drunkenness in Boston, the number of persons who get intoxicated, way they drink and how much crime results from excessive drinking, are subjects treated in "Inebriety in Boston," a pamphlet written by Maurice Farr Parmelee.

In 1907, he says, there were 36,705 persons arrested in this city for drunkenness and 3,746 of them were women. In that year nearly 70 per cent. of all arrests were for that crime.

Police records show, however, that 15,947 of the prisoners did not live in this city, although they got drunk here. They came from suburban cities and towns and from far away places. From Cambridge came 2,160, from Somerville 975, Quincy 869, Malden 567, Everett 516, Newton 405, Chelsea 384, Waltham 341 and Brookline 336.

There were nearly twice as many court cases of drunkenness in Wards 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12 all told, as in all the other municipal courts put together. This is because these wards are in the section where there are the most hotels and transients.

Charlestown ranks next in the number of cases, but this is attributed largely to people who come from suburbs adjacent, Mr. Parmelee says.

South Boston has the next highest rate of arrests. It is not frequented by many out-of-town persons, and so suits thoroughfare passes through it. Most of these arrests must therefore be of persons belonging to this district.

Consequently, if the number of arrests is any indication of the extent of drunkenness, South Boston has in all probability the heaviest drinking population of any of the eight districts under consideration.

Most of the drunkenness in South Boston is in the section west of Dorchester street. In the Dudley section to the east the drunkenness is much less.

In Roxbury most of the cases are from Roxbury, though the car terminal at Dudley street and the transfer station cause a certain number of arrests of out-of-town persons. Most of the drunkenness is north of Dudley street, while in the higher section to the south the drunkenness is much less.

Mr. Parmelee finds that court records show that more single than married men get arrested for drunkenness.

SOCIAL AFFAIRS

Over 1,000 persons attended the first night's production of the annual minstrel show of the St. Alphonsus Association held in St. Alphonsus Hall, Roxbury. William J. McGinley was interlocutor. The ends included George H. Noone, James A. McDermott, James J. Kelly, Arthur J. Lewis and William A. Murray, and Henry P. McGowan. The soloists were Francis J. Gately, Philip J. Doody, William A. Murray, George H. Noone, James A. McDermott and Arthur J. Leonard. The following young women from the Guild of Our Lady acted as ushers: Miss Mary O'Neill, Miss Margaret McElney, Miss Mary Donahue, Miss Agnes Haggerty, Miss Gertrude Lamber, Miss Bertha Murray, Miss Lizzie O'Brien, Miss Catherine Hoover, Miss Theresa Kneeland, Miss Theresa Connell, Miss Margaret Goodwin, Miss Mary Quinn, Miss Annie Connolly and Miss Catherine Burns and Miss Florence Cleary.

The sixth annual ball of the Major M. J. O'Connor Camp No. 4, U. S. W. V., held in Bethesda Hall, South Boston, was a success. William P. Dwyer, commander, was floor marshal, being assisted by S. V. Commander Daniel J. Ahern and J. V. Commander John Carnie.

The third annual ball of the Harlow Yew Tree Club will be held at Lyceum Hall, East Boston, tomorrow evening. Features will be the presentation of a cup by Mayor John F. Fitzgerald of the prizes to the winners of the club's recent bowling tournament, held on April 19. The officers are: Honorary president, John H. Mc Cullen; floor director, John H. McCulphin; assistant floor director, J. G. McAvoy; and Charles H. Crause; chief of aids, Walter R. Burke; assistant chief of aids, John A. Molloy.

Former National President of the Women's Relief Corps Mrs. Sarah E. Fuller of Medford was tendered a reception by the A. Hawes Post, G. A. R. Hall, East Boston, by Corps No. 5, of which she is a member. The occasion was to mark the close of fifteen years of service as State Treasurer. The speakers were Colonel William M. Olin, Rev. I. H. Bates, pastor of the Meridian Street M. E. Method Church; John E. Gilman and Commander A. Leavitt of John A. Hawes Post, G. A. R.

The Twentieth Century Whist Club gives a large subscription whist party at the Somerset tomorrow evening from 8:30 to 10:30 o'clock, with dancing in the large ballroom from 8:30 to 1 o'clock.

Women interested in the Baptist Home in Cambridge are holding a utility sale in Tremont Temple today. There is an entertainment today. The sale will continue tomorrow and Saturday.

At the annual meeting and dinner of the Dorchester Medical Society at the Hotel Thorndike, the following officers were elected: Dr. R. M. Merrick, president; Dr. M. Vassar Pierce, vice-president; Dr. Edward J. Brearton, secretary treasurer. William J. Watson, Dr. J. P. Parsons and Dr. C. P. Sylvester, advisory board.

Improved Modern Facilities for the

Cold Storage of Furs

By the Dry Air Preserving Process.

The garments are stored in vaults which are guaranteed to be absolutely secure against fire, moths and burglars.

Coats, Scarfs, Muffs and all fur pieces are each suspended on separate hangers under a constant pressure of circulating cold air—man-freezing point—during the entire time they are in our custody. In the Fall furs are returned in better condition, as the treatment revives the vitality and lustre. Furs are called for and delivered free of charge. Send postal or telephone Oxford 2700.

Rates—3% of Valvation.

Minimum Charge, $1.00 on large pieces; 50c on small pieces.

Remodelling may be now ordered at Spring and Summer concessions.

Friday Is "Hundred Bargain Day" at Siegel's

Fur Storage Vaults — On the Premises

HENRY SIEGEL CO.

WASHINGTON AND ESSEX STS., BOSTON, MASS. — ONLY FIREPROOF BUILDING

These Bargains Are for One Day Only—To-morrow, Friday—Not on Sale To-day. No Mail Orders

Be sure and come for your share of these Friday Bargains. Come as early as you can. Of course, there are sufficient quantities of each to last all day, but there's hundreds of other good things in quantities too small to advertise. For these it will be necessary to come early in the day, for they are bargains of a character that is simply irresistible, and therefore are picked up in a jiffy by the first comers.

The hundred specials in this page have been gotten together with the desire to meet the expectations of our patrons who look for better things in this store than any other. The goods are new and desirable—all taken from our regular all-the-year-round stocks—just the kind you must pay regular price for in any good store.

The reductions are either what we have been able to secure from the manufacturers by reason of the volume of our business or what we have seen fit to clip from our rightful profits. Come and bring your friends.

HENRY SIEGEL CO., WASHINGTON AND ESSEX STREETS, BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

FIRST CHINAMAN AS JUSTICE OF PEACE

The first instance in the United States where a Chinaman has been vested with the authority of a justice of the peace occurred when Governor Draper bestowed this distinction upon Charles K. Shu of this city. Justice Shu is a native-born American, Seattle, Wash., being his native place and San Francisco that of his Chinese wife. He is about thirty-two years old. He is now a member of the importing firm of Shu, Ying, Tuck & Co., one of the largest Chinese houses in Boston. He is also proprietor of a Chinese restaurant on Washington street.

TAFT CUP FOR SONDER RACES

President Taft in the Mayflower, the executive yacht, is to follow the international yacht races to be sailed off Marblehead the first week in September between American and German boats of the new famous sonder class.

These matches are under the joint direction of the Eastern Yacht Club, on behalf of the American boats entered and the Kaiserlicher Yacht Club, of which the German Kaiser is the head, on behalf of the German boats. The presence of President Taft at the race is sure to gratify the Germans and may result in the Crown Prince of Germany, who owns a sonder class boat, which is safe himself, becoming an entry.

In addition to the assurance that President Taft will be present at the races, which short in Marblehead harbor in sight of the Summer White House at Beverly, the Eastern Yacht Club has received persuasion that the grand prize this year be known as the President Taft cup.

HOLD YOUTH FOR STEALING AUTO

Fred Marshall, aged twenty-one, giving his address as Hotel Thorndyke, who was arrested in Worcester last Friday on a charge of stealing an automobile from K. A. Skinner of No. 170 Clarendon street, was held for the grand jury in bonds by Judge Parmenter in $2,500 bonds. The police say his name is Whipper, and that he comes from Minneapolis.

ONE DEAD IN MILLION FIRE

CHICAGO, April 29.—One man was killed, three are missing, and a score were injured, and property valued at $1,000,000 destroyed in a fire which broke out early to-day in Elevator B of the Illinois Central at the foot of South Water street.

The dead man was Fire Lieutenant McElliott, who was killed by falling walls. It is thought that three missing firemen are buried in the ruins.

Fanned by a stiff northeast gale, the flames and sparks were carried for blocks over the immediate neighborhood and the efforts of the firemen were concentrated in an effort to keep it from spreading.

The building was filled with wheat, corn and rye. The exact amount of grain in the structure is not known at this time but it is feared that the loss will run far over the first estimate.

The destroyed elevator was about 75 feet high, 125 feet feet long and 50 feet wide.

The fire originated in the basement, presumably in the boiler room.

ZIG-ZAG JOURNEY THROUGH SIBERIA

Fred Niblo, the American humorist-traveller, who has delighted large crowds at the Park Theatre by his entertaining pictorial "Talks of Travel in Distant Lands," will give another of his series of zigzag journeys around the world to-morrow afternoon. Mr. Niblo's subject will be a zigzag journey through Russia, from the Black Sea to Siberia.

TO-DAY'S CABLE NEWS

Up to Midnight, London Time

German Meat Deal Alarms the English.

LONDON—Germany's move to make a great meat contract with Chicago packers frightens the British, who fear that in the event of war their own supply will be shut off. The proposed meat deal is regarded as a disastrous blow to England. If a war were to break out the British fleet would find itself in a sorry plight for lack of preserved meat, and if Germany shall open up the big contract with Chicago the British Admiralty would find it impossible to renew its contract for a supply of tinned meat from Chicago.

Jews Boycott Russia.

ST. PETERSBRG— According to Count Witte, the Jewish disabilities caused a powerful body of Jewish financiers abroad to boycott Russian securities, while Russia's alienation of German financiers had led to a further contraction in dealings in these securities. The Russian debt has risen to $5,000,000,000, an increase of $1,450,000,000 in five years.

Steal $20,000 Art Works.

PARIS—Burglars have stolen from the museum at Gueret fifty-two valuable examples and several reliquaries to the value of $20,000. The theft illustrates the lack of care in guarding provincial museums.

Heavy English Deficit.

LONDON—The treasury has issued a statement giving the balance sheet for 1908-09, with the estimated expenditures for 1909-10. It shows that the chancellor of the exchequer faces a deficit of $78,810,000. This is some $10,000,000 more than was generally anticipated.

Miss Adams to Tour Europe.

BERLIN—Charles Frohman announces that a year from now Maude Adams will make a Continental tour in a cycle of Barrie's plays; also in "L'Aiglon," "Twelfth Night," and "Romeo and Juliet."

De Broglie Divorce Heard.

PARIS—The divorce court heard the suit of Prince Robert de Broglie against his wife. Decision was reserved. The Princess de Broglie was Miss Estelle Alexander, of San Francisco.

Women Form Murder Gang.

ST. PETERSBURG—Eight women under arrest to-day at Novoladoga are thought to be a gang of murderesses. The police think they can trace at least ten murders to the band. The police say that the leader is an old woman. In the cellar of her home the body of a wealthy merchant was found. He had been lured away and murdered. His clothing was robbed.

Plot Against King Peter.

VIENNA—Diplomatic advices received here to-day state that Servian army officers are planning to overthrow King Peter in September.

Americans in Jap Merger.

TOKIO.—The amalgamation of the American General Electric Company, the Shibaura Engineering Works and the Tokio Electric Company is announced. The American General Electric Company is a big shareholder in the Tokio company, which is now principally manufacturing electric light lamps.

London Beauty Lord's Bride.

LONDON—One of the smartest weddings of the season took place this afternoon in St. Margaret's, Westminster, when Lord Brooke and Miss Elfrida Marjorie, the daughter of Sir William Eden, were married. The bride is one of the most beautiful women in London society. The bridegroom is the heir of the Earl of Warwick's estate.

Germans Alarm British.

LONDON—German's move to make a great meat contract with Chicago packers frightens the British, who fear that in the event of war their own supply will be shut off. The proposed meat deal is regarded as a disastrous blow to England.

PUBLICITY TO BE CHECK ON GRAFTERS

The proposed city charter received a thorough analysis at the hands of William C. Free of the Committee of One Hundred in Ashmont at a meeting of the members of the Ashmont Universalist Men's Club. Mr. Free said:

"If there is anything that the dishonest, careless or lazy man shuns it is the limelight. Publicity through the official publication of the city of every transaction which draws upon the city's treasury to an appreciable extent will open it to the light of day. The men who in past years have fattened upon padded pay-rolls, exorbitant prices and dishonest contracts will find this provision of the charter a strong deterrent."

HEARING ON CHELSEA PONY EXPRESS CASE

The Chelsea Board of Control will give a hearing at 2:30 p. m. to-morrow in the Courthouse on the remonstrance of the local W. C. T. U. against the issuance of pony express licenses. The city will order, May 1, and ten applications for express licenses have already been received.

DOUBLE STAMPS MORNINGS

HERE IS THE OFFICIAL TAB ON CITY'S JAGS

Drunkenness in Boston, the number of persons who get intoxicated, way they drink and how much crime results from excessive drinking, are subjects treated in "Inebriety in Boston," a pamphlet written by Maurice Farr Parmelee.

In 1907, he says, there were 36,705 persons arrested in this city for drunkenness and 5,746 of them were women. In that year nearly 70 per cent. of all arrests were for that cause.

Police records show, however, that 15,947 of the prisoners did not live in this city, although they got drunk here. They came from suburban cities and towns and from far away places. From Cambridge came 2,100, from Somerville 975, Quincy 809, Malden 567, Everett 516, Newton 465, Chelsea 284, Waltham 241 and Brookline 236.

There were nearly twice as many court cases of drunkenness in Wards 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12 all told, as in all the other municipal courts put together. This is because these wards are in the section where there are the most hotels and drinking places.

Charlestown ranks next in the number of cases, but this is attributed largely to people who come from suburbs adjacent, Mr. Parmelee says.

South Boston has the next highest rate of arrests. It is not frequented by many out-of-town persons, and no main thoroughfare passes through it. Most of these arrests, therefore, must be of persons belonging to this district.

Consequently, if the number of arrests is any indication of the extent of drunkenness, South Boston has in all probability the heaviest drinking population of any of the eight districts under consideration.

Most of the drunkenness in South Boston is in the section west of Dorchester street. In the higher section to the east the drunkenness is much less.

In Roxbury most of the cases are from Roxbury, though the car terminal at Dudley street and Washington Avenue causes a certain number of arrests of out-of-town persons. Most of the drunkenness is north of Dudley street, while in the higher section to the south the drunkenness is much less.

Mr. Parmelee finds that court records show that more single than married men get arrested for drunkenness.

SOCIAL AFFAIRS

Over 1,000 persons attended the first night's production of the annual minstrel show of the St. Alphonsus Association held in St. Alphonsus Hall, Roxbury, William J. McGlinchy was interlocutor. JORDAN SAYS WIFE'S DEATH WAS GOD'S WILL liefs and practices have been?" He said he had been a church-goer, having gone to the Presbyterian and sometimes to the Congregational church. He had gone to church all his single life and had kept it up during his married life. He said that he had read the Bible once or twice a week and had one in jail and read it every day.

"I asked him if he believed in God and the hereafter, and he said he did, and that every man should be punished for his sins. I asked him what he thought his chances to the next world would be, and he replied that he expected to go to Heaven, but he didn't know whether it would be immediately after death or not.

"I asked him if he had asked God to forgive him for his sins, and he said that he had asked him to tell me how sorry he was for his sins, and I passed over several. Jordan said he couldn't think of any of his sins at that time. I questioned him in regard to the alleged murder, and I asked him if he had asked God for his forgiveness. He said 'No.' I asked him why. Jordan replied, 'Because I don't believe that I am responsible.' If God hadn't willed that this should take place it never would have.

Few Quarrels With Wife.

"I asked him if God communicated to him a desire to have his wife killed and consummate that desire.

"He said that he never quarreled very much with his wife, that they had their little tiffs, but that they always made up. He said that about two weeks before the murder he had had a quarrel about the contemplated starting up of a boarding-house in the building. His wife had made a remark imputing what she claimed was his real purpose in going up to that building and he had replied by calling his wife a name. He left the house then, went down street and played pool and then returned to dinner. He threw her arms about his neck, kissed him and told him that she was very sorry for what she had said.

"That, he said, was the most serious quarrel that he ever had with his wife. He told me that since that time, when he felt it seemed that God must have willed it that he should kill his wife, other voices would not have been done.

"I asked him if he believed that God, and he said he had not. I asked him if he had had any unusual experience in jail and he said that he had an experience in jail on the 28th of September which was unusual. He said that he had been preparing to go to bed and that he lay down, but did not go to sleep. He waited until after the officers had come around with the light according to their custom. He said his right ear was against the pillow when he heard a voice say:

Told of Voices in Cell.

"'What are you trying to do, anyway?' He said that voice was a whisper, but a very intense whisper. He said that the voice was a loud voice, yet like a whisper. He said that he had never had any such experience before or since.

"He told me that after his arrest, and while he was in jail he experienced but one other peculiar thing, someone tapping him on the shoulder or on the back of the head. He told me that he would instantly turn around to see who was touching him, and each time he would see no one there.

"I asked him about his early life. He said that he had never been a drunkard, drinking man, and that he could not carry liquor as other young men do. He said that if he went out with other men he was the first to get drunk. That after a night or ten years he said that he very rarely touched anything to drink. He told me about the headaches which he had, and said that they were worse during the past eight years. He said that they had occurred more often at night than during the day time, and that when he had one he knew that it seemed unbearable. He said that during the last year they had probably occurred as often as two or three times a week, and sometimes twice in two days.

Not Afraid of Chair.

"I asked him if the jury should find him guilty of murder in the first degree how that would affect him. He said that he would not worry him any. I asked him if he didn't have any anxiety as to the outcome of his trial and he said, 'I don't care why I should.' I asked him if knew what the penalty of murder in the first degree was, and he said, 'Yes; it is electrocution, but it wouldn't hurt, so I have been told.'

"I asked him how he knew it wouldn't hurt. He said he knew because it was merely an electric current and that an electric current was something that didn't hurt. I asked him if it did hurt if that would make any difference. He replied, 'That would be different; I want to be executed.'

"I asked him if he ever read the Bible. He said that he did and that he had read various parts of the Bible. I asked him what he read most often and he replied the twenty-third psalm. I asked him if he could repeat it and he said he could not by rote. I asked him if he ever read the miracles in the Bible, and he said that he was very much interested in them. I asked him if he thought that people could perform some of those miracles to-day and he said some might. I asked him if he thought he could and he said he didn't think he could.

"I asked what else he had read in the Bible and he said he had read the Nineteenth Chapter of Judges very frequently. I asked him what the story in that chapter was and he told me that it was the story of the Levite who took a wife who was unfaithful after marriage. The wife left the Levite and the Levite followed her. He found her at her father's house and stayed there several nights. He told me that the Levite found his wife on the threshold of the door of a room in which was a guest.

"Resembled His Own Case."

At this point District Attorney Higgins broke in and I asked the witness if he was telling the story as Jordan told it to him or as he knew it to be in the Bible. The witness replied that he was telling it as Jordan had told it.

"Jordan told me that the Levite on discovering his wife's body on the threshold of the guest's room cut her up in twelve parts and then distributed the twelve parts among the twelve tribes of Israel, one for each tribe. I asked him why he read that chapter so often. He said it was because it in many respects resembled the case of himself.

"I asked him if he had any notion of making his act correspond with the biblical act. He said that at first he didn't think that he did and that he didn't know but when it came to him, but that it came to him some time on Wednesday. I asked him who he wanted to be like in the biblical accounts in his own case and he said that he didn't know, but that it had to be done that way.

"I asked him if he had received a command from God and he said 'No,' and that it had simply come to him to do it that way. I asked regarding the incentive for the cutting up by the Levite of the body into twelve parts and the cutting up himself of the body into thirteen parts, he said that he did not consider that it could be made directly across the body for the purpose of getting it into the grave, but really a cutting of the thirteenth part. He intended to and thought he had cut it into twelve parts.

Was to Throw Body in Water.

"I asked him if he had any notion of distributing the twelve parts after the manner of the Levite and he said that he had not. He said that he was going to try in some way to get rid of it that he had also said that there were three bridges across the Charles and that he was going to throw the pieces over, one of them from the bridges. He frankly admitted that his purpose was to dismember the body in some manner and he didn't care whether it was so long as he got rid of it. He did not talk with me on the October trip on the subject of the act itself. He said he liked being in jail, that he had plenty to eat and nothing to do and wasn't anxious to get out. He said he would just as soon remain there, but that on another occasion he was hurrying the jail he said that he wished he was going out too, but evidently then he would come back.

"I asked him if he had any regrets or remorse over the loss of his wife and if he missed her. He said that he did sometimes, but he had no regrets or remorse. I asked him if he was fond of his wife. He said that he was, and when I asked him how it was if he was fond of her that he didn't miss her and grieve over her, he replied that he couldn't say that he did.

Attacked With a Knife.

"On February 11th he described to me a sensation that he had in his stomach, chest and neck and stated after he had cut his wife and as she fell down stairs. He told me that on the night of the homicide he sat in a chair in the sitting room while his wife was getting supped to bed and that he felt tired and like dozing, but could not understand what she was saying. He said that he didn't like her coming home from a party, and that he had a knife. He said he didn't recall whether he pushed her or struck her, but she fell down the back stairs and lay still at the bottom. He said that he went down after her and had gotten down two steps when he felt sick and faint.

"It is a perfect symptom of epileptic seizure," said Dr. Jelly, "and I have seen such a seizure. Jordan described the cutting up of the body in the same way that he described it to me during the night he cut his wife's throat. She was then not dead, but dying. He described the whole length of the body right down through the middle, and I asked him how he could do it with the hard parts of the chest. He said he had a hatchet, and I asked him then if he had the knife and razor that he found the next morning.

"He said that, having cut the body, he became hungry and made coffee and ate two chops and some bread and butter. I asked him if he remembered washing his hands and he said that he couldn't remember, but he must have.

"I asked him if he knew at the time that he had told the police that he had found some of the hair in the stove and he said that he had put this there yesterday about this, and he said that he had burned some of the hair in the stove. He said that he had put the hair in the stove also, and some in the coal bank, but he couldn't explain why some parts were burned and the hair not. His memory for details, he told me, was hazy.

"He said, though, that his memory was very distinct concerning the events of Wednesday.

Didn't Think of Ledger.

"On the examination of February 11th I asked him about the ledger in the house, whether the ledger was at home on the night of the homicide, and he answered that he said the ledger must have been at home, as he found the bed mussed up each morning afterward, and he had made the bed himself. I asked him if he wasn't afraid that the ledger might come to light day night while he was cutting up the body and that Wednesday morning the ledger might go to the kitchen and find the body on the floor. He said he never thought of that.

"I asked him if the ledger didn't save the use of the bathroom and if he wouldn't have been liable to go there any time, and he told me that he had thought of but that that never occurred to his mind. I asked him if he went into the kitchen on night of the homicide and he told me that after cutting the chops, frying and butter, he went to bed and fell asleep, but his sleep was troubled. He'd wake up in starts and then fall asleep again. Around morning, however, he dropped into a heavy sleep. He woke up at 7 o'clock, sat up in bed and, feeling nauseated and dizzy, lay back on his pillow. He saw that his clothes on and he couldn't understand why he had gone to bed with them on. He missed his wife and couldn't understand why she wasn't by his side.

"Prisoner Very Irritable."

"He arose and going into the kitchen saw his wife lying on the floor with her head across the threshold of the pantry door. Her throat was cut. I told him that on October 13 he had told me that he had found the body in the set tubs, and he said he could not. I asked him how the body got from the set tubs to the floor and he could not say. I asked him as he was yesterday in the presence of Dr. Jelly and Dr. Paige to explain this inconsistency in his story, and he told me that he had tried hard to get an explanation, but could not.

"I had found him very irritable at times. This irritability showed itself on April 11th. He began to grumble because his dinner was not ready and worked himself up into quite a passion.

"I noticed his irritability in a very marked degree. He said he would like to see what this is all about, anyway. I'd like to stay here and act in the case to the trial. I don't want to go across there for trial, and I won't be unless they can give me plenty of time for my dinner.'

"Jordan told me that he cut the throat of his wife down the back. I asked him why he didn't subdue her in the sitting room. I asked him if he did it that way because it was quicker. He said it may have been.

"On my visit February 11 Jordan said that the first thing he did on Wednesday morning after he awoke was to sit down with his head in his hands trying to think what had happened. I asked him what he thought did it. He said, 'I don't know.' Did you think you did it yourself? I then asked him, and he said that when he saw the body he thought he must have done it.

Put Head in Furnace.

"He told about removing the head and arms, and carrying the head and thigh bones down cellar and putting them in the furnace.

"I asked him why he did it and he said that he didn't know, but something had to be done with them.

"On February 12 he remarked that he hadn't told me about the flatiron. He said it came to him gradually that before he left his wife's dead body he carried the body into the pantry and got a flatiron while he was on the kitchen floor and he struck her four or five times on the head and face as he could.

"He finished cutting up the body Wednesday night and went over to the home of his father, Mrs. Kendall, about 7:30 and played pool and listened to the graphophone. I asked him if he thought he could take part in a game and sing knowing all the time that his wife's dead body was at home. He said he didn't care about that. I asked him if he wasn't anxious to get back that night to get rid of the body and he said 'no.'

Ill When Under Tests.

"His narrative was connected and coherent in every way. At the time Dr. Jelly made his examination, however, it was not connected. He would start to tell about how Jordan stared for three or four minutes into space. Dr. Jelly said to him, 'Come come; answer the question.' Finally, Jordan leaned over sleepy-sick, settled down in his chair, looked about him with a puzzled look, as though trying to get his bearings. 'Answer the question,' repeated Dr. Jelly. 'What question?' he asked. The question was then repeated. At that time Jordan had a small attack of epilepsy.

"In Dr. Jelly's opinion, his irritability is a sign of disease. Irritability is often a sign of mental disturbance."

I showed him calmly one day a photograph of his wife's head. He grasped it, looked at it, and calmly said: "It's a photograph of my wife." He said that she looked a bit like her. Somebody must have been monkeying with it, as cut the hair all off. He said that it didn't miss her and grieve over her, he replied that he couldn't say that he did.

'GOD BADE ME KILL MY WIFE,' JORDAN TELLS ALIENIST

Chester S. Jordan, in a talk with Dr. William McDonald, a Providence alienist, called to the defence of the man on trial for the alleged murder of his wife, declared that God had directed him to kill his wife. He said his case was like that of the Levite in Chapter XIX. of Judges, who, Jordan said, killed his wife and cut her body into twelve pieces. Part of the Bible chapter referred to by Jordan follows:

From Judges, Chapter XIX.

25. Then came the woman at the dawning of the day, and fell down at the door of the man's house where her lord was, till it was light.

27. And her lord rose up in the morning and opened the doors of the house, and went out to go his way: and behold the woman his concubine was fallen down at the door of the house, and her hands were upon the threshold.

28. And he said unto her, Up, and let us be going. But none answered. Then the man took her up upon an ass, and the man rose up, and gat him unto his place.

29. And when he was come into his house, he took a knife, and laid hold on his concubine, and divided her, together with her bones, into twelve pieces, and sent her into all the coasts of Israel.

30. And it was so, that all that saw it said, There was no such deed done nor seen from the day that the children of Israel came up out of the land of Egypt unto this day: consider of it, take advice, and speak your minds.

ATTORNEY HART DENIES ANY PART IN A "FRAME-UP"

NEW YORK, April 29.—William F. B. Hart, attorney for Jesse L. Livermore and brother-in-law of Chester S. Jordan, now on trial for murder in Boston to-day denied that he had had any hand in the alleged "frame-up" of the actor's defence.

"I have no connection with the case really this," said Lawyer Hart. "Several months ago I went to Boston at the request of Mr. Livermore and engaged counsel for Jordan. I looked over the ground for this purpose and selected the men who were best adapted to the purpose. Then I returned to New York.

"These allegations of the prosecuting attorney in Boston are all false. I was and I did not, in any sense, participate in the working up of the defence for Jordan and acted in no other capacity than the one I have stated."

HIGGINS STYLES RELIGIOUS STORY CUNNING FRAME-UP

Before court convened Judges Stevens and Bell conferred with Lawyer Pratt of the defence and District-Attorney Higgins about closing the jury box in the case of Jordan told Dr. McDonald about God directing him to kill his wife and that he had cut her up into twelve pieces after the Levite in the Scriptures.

When court opened at 9.30, the jury still being excluded from the courtroom, Judge Stevens said: "Counsel will please be seated. Now, from you, Mr. District-Attorney."

District-Attorney Higgins then stated that after this defendant was arrested he was visited in jail by Mr. Pratt, a New York lawyer. Mr. Pratt visited almost daily by this Mr. Hart for whom he was searching. He visited at least two or three times a week for two weeks afterward. Part of the time this lawyer had with him an unknown man, whom we presume was an alienist, and no one can tell what the alienist told Jordan or what he found.

"It is fair to presume that the defendant received certain instructions and that he carried out those instructions as well as he could. I wish Your Honors to take this matter into further consideration, that this defendant was a play actor by his own story and knows something about dramatic action.

"I wish Your Honors to notice the story that Jordan told to Officers Crowley and Dugan immediately after he was arrested as to how he felt and what he did just before he killed his wife. He told how he will notice that never once did he mention God. He told Dr. McDonald as to how he felt.

Cites Pomeroy Case.

"He told Dr. McDonald what he was told to say and if he might be acquitted on circumstance that men in so close touch with Jordan in those first six weeks after his arrest do not now suppose he is the case. As regards the law, we have the case of the Commonwealth against Pomeroy, where the prisoner was examined eight days after his arrest by alienists. The Court excluded the evidence of these alienists in so far as any narration of facts was concerned upon the part of the prisoner to the alienists.

"The question is not, is the prisoner insane now, but was he not sane on September 1st last and did he not then know the difference between right and wrong? The question is not, was he insane on October 13 last or upon his four other occasions when examined by the alienists, but was he sane or insane on the day of the homicide? That's the question.

"Alienists will say that men may think they have a glass head or glass arm, but at the same time they will distinguish the difference between right and wrong. If one should think that Chester S. Jordan was in a normal condition when doing those things, now it makes no difference what the condition is now, for he is insane now, the court can take care of him. We can't take into consideration the evidence. It bears every earmark of self-serving and is being given by instruction of counsel and alienists.

Calls It a "Frame-Up."

"It is a frame-up, colloquially speaking, intended to have some of the jurymen get the idea that the defendant is not and has not been right. I absolve Dr. McDonald from any complicity in this scheme. The cunning, astute men had Jordan practically in their keeping for six weeks. They were alone with him in his cell. They knew what to do.

"Then Dr. McDonald was brought in. Dr. McDonald didn't know this and on Dr. McDonald's examination Jordan simply acted as he was told to act by the cunning and astute gentlemen from New York who are now out of the case. The job was framed up cleverly and Jordan, the play actor, did his part in simulation. In the interests of all that is fair and just, you ought to exclude this evidence."

The court handed down the following decision:

"After carefully considering both sides of this question, and after careful examination of the authorities, the court has come to the conclusion that this witness may testify to conversations with the defendant relative to bodily and mental condition which he may have had, for the purpose of determining whether the defendant was sane or insane at the time of the alleged homicide.

"But this is not to be used by the jury as evidence of the truth of the matter stated. The witness may not state whether he believed the defendant was or was not telling the truth."

REAL SUFFERERS JORDAN'S DEAR ONES, SAYS DOROTHY AMES

By DOROTHY AMES.

At the trial of Chester S. Jordan, as in every other murder trial in this State, there is a certain rule and custom which would revolutionize society if it could only be put in force. Every person who takes a life can only tell what they themselves know of a certainty—only the things they positively know to be facts.

Nothing and no one heard anyone else say to be so, nothing they surmise or suppose or conjecture, nothing that savors in the least of second sight is admitted. No witness can repeat conversations or voice opinions.

What a blessing it would be if that rule of the trial were in practice among all the people.

What a dearth of scandal and gossip there would be in town. No gossip would last. If we could only say the things about our neighbors that we ourselves have seen and know with our own eyes and heard with our own ears!

Of course, it would be extremely difficult to eliminate all characterizations of people and their actions. Every one would have to be free of personal prejudice. Even witness can repeat conversations or voice opinions.

What a blessing it would be if that rule of the trial were in practice among all the people.

What a dearth of scandal and gossip there would be in town. No gossip would last. If we could only say the things about our neighbors that we ourselves have seen and know with our own eyes and heard with our own ears!

Of course, it would be extremely difficult to eliminate all characterizations of people and their actions. Every one would have to be free of personal prejudice. But talking just what we know to be true, we would find that a great deal of worry would be saved.

Hearsay Testimony.

One doesn't realize until he or she is on the witness stand how much of what we say that doesn't contain more or less hearsay and conjecture.

"How do you know?" and "Do you know that from your own observation?" are questions which bring one to a standstill when applied to almost any statement when applied.

The afternoon too, the bridge party, the dance might be filled in with "Do you know" copies, if the precious tidbits of gossip were released—if the "they say" and "I heard" comments could not be introduced.

You say that's rather severe—this bringing our everyday life up to the regime of the court room? But even so, isn't it fair that should be so. When it comes down to the fine point have we any right to guess at the things people who know think or do. Unsophisticated and ignorant as we are, we have no right to discuss our friends and acquaintances, and we all know how a story grows in the telling. Some threadbare it really is of actual fact when it is torn to pieces and attempt to substantiate it.

Courts Teach Lesson.

So many of us are so prone to express opinions and to voice ideas based upon them, to characterize their actions. We couldn't do it in court on the witness stand. We simply don't consider ourselves competent or fair. Why isn't it just as incompetent and unfair in real life?

The courts have a right to hand down opinions at a trial are the experts, people who have studied the law, whereas the other is allowed to voice an expression of opinion, even though they be a relative or a very near friend of the prisoner.

I think that we can learn a lesson from what is admissable in court to decide for ourselves what is proper and right.

I find that as the days of the many things that happen daily at this murder trial, it is only one of those things that we can take home to ourselves, and gain a deeper realization of how little respect of what we might be, that we all fail.

Can You Tell the Cause of Your Trouble?

Are you sometimes discouraged, and think you'll never be any better? Have you a constant feeling of your trouble, or what makes you sick?

Do you know that about nine-tenths of all sickness is caused by kidney trouble?

Have you ever stopped to think that your kidneys may be the cause of your poor health?

Most people do not realize how much work the kidneys are required to do every day.

Every drop of blood in the body must pass through and be filtered by the kidneys thousands of times a day. How can they do their work well if they are sick?

If your kidneys need treatment, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the wonderful kidney remedy, will prove to be just the medicine you need.

If you will write to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., every reader of this paper, who has not already tried Swamp-Root, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy, may receive a sample bottle by mail, absolutely free. You can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at all drug stores.

DR. HALE NOT ILL; GOES OUT DRIVING

Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale, chaplain of the United States Senate, who has been reported ill, is to-day at his home, No. 39 Highland street, Roxbury, and in perfect health. It was reported that he was taken ill on a train while on the way here from Washington. Appointed to preach for Dr. Hale's health first arose when, on April 19, he failed to appear at a meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution in Boston where he was to have offered prayer. He sent his regrets, giving as his reason the heat. It was 86 degrees on that day. The doctor is 87 years of age. This afternoon he enjoyed a carriage ride around Boston.

LOVE TRAGEDY AND SUICIDE AT SMITH COLLEGE

Northampton, where the doctors said they feared she could not recover.

Miss Marden's parents were notified by telephone. Mr. Marden, who is senior member of the firm of Marden, Orth & Hastings, oil importers at No. 223 Purchase street, Boston, caught the 10:20 o'clock train, just as Mrs. Marden drove up in an automobile.

Insane, Says His Sister.

Both Miss Marden and Smith had sisters in Smith College. Miss Louise Marden, sister of the girl, declared immediately after the shooting:

"I believe Smith was out of his mind; I can't think he was to blame for what he did."

Dr. L. Clarke Seelye, president of Smith College, however, gave a different conclusion as to the tragedy when he declared in a statement:

"From what I know, the attentions of Smith were not acceptable to the unfortunate young girl. He had been pursuing her for some time, wishing to marry her. Two years ago they became engaged, but the engagement was broken off several months ago."

Smith was third baseman of the Dartmouth College team until he graduated a year ago. He was a noted athlete. For a long time he was a suitor of Miss Marden, who was one of the most popular of Smith College girls. At her graduation in June she was to have a leading part in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," and, in fact, she had just finished rehearsing a singing part in the gymnasium when she went to her death.

Had Sweethearts' Quarrel.

Smith succeeded in winning the girl's consent to marry, but for some reason, unknown to their friends, the engagement was ended, after a quarrel. The young lovers refused to accept last determination as final, and all Winter has been visiting Northampton frequently in an effort to renew the engagement.

He arrived there Tuesday morning for his last visit, and registered at the Draper Hotel. He tried several times to see Miss Marden, but was unsuccessful.

His victim was much worried about this visit to Smith College. Her roommate, Miss Helen True, declared to a reporter to-day: "Helen was very anxious about Smith. She worried a lot lately about him. She told me so worried this morning that she did not go to chapel, but was about to start to her room."

Miss Emily Smith, a sister of Porter Smith, took his body to Chicago this afternoon.

Had Good College Record.

Porter Mac-Dougall Smith, who shot Miss Helen Marden and then killed himself, was graduated from Dartmouth College in the class of 1908. His home was in Chicago.

In college he was one of the most popular and prominent members of the class and the student body. He belonged to the Alpha Delta Phi Greek letter fraternity, the "Turtle" society, the "Outing" club, Casque and the "Palaeopitus," the senior society which is the highest honor during Dartmouth's odelon.

He was a graduate of University High School of Chicago. In college in Hanover he was a member of the Freshman Mandolin Club and of the Dartmouth Mandolin Club in '05, '06, '07 and '08, as well as a member of the Varsity Quintet. He played in the Varsity Golf Club in '06, '07 and '07 and was captain last year. He played in the freshman baseball team, was a player and manager of the sophomore team and a member of the varsity squad, but failed to get his letter.

He was a member of the trophy committee while in his junior year and was chairman of the junior promenade committee and directed the class could give him. In 1907 he was cheer leader for the varsity.

A dispatch from Chicago to the AMERICAN late this afternoon said that Porter Smith was thought to be the son of Mrs. J. M. Smith of the Kenwood Hotel, Chicago. The dispatch said:

"Mrs. Smith denied knowledge of the tragedy and declared Porter Smith of Smith must have been the man. She said:

"My son was in Northampton, Mass., and I received a telegram from my daughter last night, saying that she would return with him at once. My son has been ill for two years. If he has done such a thing I am sure that he must have been out of his mind, but I feel certain that Porter Smith, who committed this awful deed, must have been some other Porter Smith. I know my boy could not have done such a thing. I do not know of Miss Marden. I do not think he knew any girls at all well."

SUFFRAGE HOSTS MUST BE MILITANT

By WILLIAM T. STEAD.

Special Correspondent of the Boston American.

LONDON, April 29.—The best reply to those who are denouncing suffragettes for their outrageous methods is to contrast the meagre reports appearing in English papers of the women's international parliament with the prominence given the sensational exploits, such as that where St. Stephen's Hall saw four women attack themselves by handcuffs to marble statues of British statesmen and from that vantage ground endeavor to protest in favor of woman's suffrage.

Every morning paper gives precedence to this incident over the meagre woman's parliament and demonstration. In the manner this evening's papers, which ignore the parliament, print conspicuously the attempt of three or four suffragettes to waylay the prime minister and his colleagues.

Militant Tactics Win Notice.

If the suffragettes abandoned militant, provocative tactics and left their propaganda to responsible methods, the newspapers would report none of the meetings and the question would be declared to be dead.

I went to Stratford-on-Avon last night, where a popular dramatic entertress presided and delivered an address in support of the general Canadian candidate, who favors woman's suffrage. Muriel Matters, an Australian actress, interviewed the chairman elect, trying in vain to be allowed to nominate a woman candidate. An amusing instance of Tory ignorance and insularity is the cry against Martin, who was once Premier Minister in Canada, that "we don't want any foreigners." It is a cruel comment on the blatant imperialism of the party.

Interest in Holland's Queen.

Queen Maud's telegram of sympathy, read at Albert Hall, would have horrified her grandmother. When I was in Copenhagen the King of Denmark expressed himself in favor of woman's suffrage. His Queen expressed her dissent. Her husband remarked:

"But you have already got yourself all there are ashtrays for."

The Queen Mother of Holland is a keen feminist, but the Queen who is the centre of attention to-day commands the limelight, not because of her views on suffrage, but because of the suffering she is undergoing in bringing into the world the future monarch of Holland.

WHAT A KISS COST LIEUTENANT OSBORNE—"Marry my wife or I'll disgrace you." Striking story of fact in next Sunday's AMERICAN.

MELROSE HEIR, LOST 25 YEARS, RETURNS

Daniel Lake Russell, son of the late Daniel Russell, who died at Melrose three years ago, leaving an estate of $500,000, is home after an absence of twenty-five years to claim his share of the estate. The son's mother, Russell divorced his father and divided between his two sons, William E. and Daniel L., should the latter be found. Daniel L. Russell left his home twenty-five years ago to seek his fortune, and up to the time of his father's death had not been heard from. The first he saw of his parent before his death sought trace of his son and advertised in papers in all parts of the world, but failed to find him.

William E. Russell refused to accept him as his brother. Daniel says he has been in Colorado, where he worked on a ranch, and has proof of his identity.

PUBLICITY TOO MUCH FOR NAN PATTERSON

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Publicity has become so abhorrent to Nan Patterson that she was the victim of a nervous collapse after reading in the newspapers that she had been identified as the mysterious woman caller on Bernard Stevens, a young bank clerk, who lies wounded in a Washington hospital. Mrs. Martin, as Nan Patterson is now known, caused her physician, Dr. J. Franklin Hilton, to notify the newspapers that she is ill, ill, ill, new reporters. The doctor also said that Mrs. Martin was not hiding and has nothing to conceal.

BIG BALLOON LANDS AFTER FIVE HOURS

WATERBURY, Ct., April 29.—"The darkest balloon flight I have ever made," was the comment of A. Holland Forbes of New York after he landed here to-day in the North Adams No. 1, following an ascension at North Adams at 2:13 p. m. to-day. He had with him Clifford B. Harmon, a wealthy New York real estate man. Only three bags of ballast were used, although the balloon was in the air five hours and twenty-seven minutes. From 4:30 to 6:30 p. m. the balloon rambled at an almost even altitude of 200 feet.

FIND 32 SKELETONS NOW AT PRINCETON

PRINCETON, N. J., April 29.—Twenty-nine more skeletons were discovered by workmen in Princeton, while excavating for the foundation for the Sage dormitory. This makes the total number thirty-two. It was known that there was a private cemetery in this locality, but there are no records extant to show the names of the persons buried there.

RED SOX AND HIGHLANDERS IN LAST GAME TO-DAY

ROCHESTER'S FAST TEAM AT PROVIDENCE

PROVIDENCE, April 29.—With the unique record of three tie games—one of twelve innings and one of eleven with Baltimore, and one of twelve with New York—in five games played in the Eastern League championship series, John Gaisdell's Rochester team comes to the Providence Baseball Grounds to-day to do battle with the Grays in the first of a series of three games.

The ex-Broncho, for the team has been renamed the Hustlers, present a far stronger aggregation this season than last, both on paper and the field.

A ten-strike was made when the veteran Gaisdell was engaged as manager, and he has gathered about him a team of real ball players, strong in every department, and one that will be heard from during the season.

Included in the line-up is Harry Pattee of this city, who is covering second base; Maloney of North Attleboro, caught from Brooklyn; Butler and Lewis, of last season's catching staff; Monte Beville of the 1905 Grays, a great favorite here; Beecher of the Newarks of last year; Steamer Flanagan, Holly, Butch, "Goat" Anderson, McDonald and Cy Barger, besides a number of other first string men.

Manager Duffy will probably use either Lavender or Joe Harris in the box to-day. Long John Anderson will appear in the line-up, although just at what position had not been decided last night.

The Hustlers look strong in pitchers, and from the way the Grays are hitting the ball at present it looks as if they would have need of all they have in the outfit. Manager Duffy has every hope of landing in first place in the league standing at the end of this series.

NOONAN MAY JOIN PITTSFIELD

GREAT BARRINGTON, April 28.—Pete Noonan, who is now coaching the University of Maine baseball team, is wanted by the Mohicle (Ala.) team, which is willing to pay Wilkesbarre $700 for him.

Although Noonan would get one-half the purchase money by going, in case Wilkesburre agreed to the sale, he will play with Pittsfield this season, for he does not desire to leave the Berkshires.

Since captaining Holy Cross Noonan has played with Connie Mack's Athletics, the Chicago Nationals, St. Louis Nationals and the St. Paul club of the American Association.

He was an intimate friend of the late Maurice Powers while on the Athletics. Last year Noonan's arm troubled him, but he worked it out at Georgetown in the Winter and says his whip was never in better shape.

He is to remain in Pittsfield because he does not want to take the long trips necessary for a league team, as it would interfere with his study of law.

ATHLETES TO GO ON 25-MILE WALK

Athletes of West Roxbury are looking forward to the twenty-five-mile walking match which the Roslindale Athletic Club is to manage on May 30. Many of the leading amateurs in this part of the country are preparing to take part. The Boston Athletic Association will start from Harvard Corner, one mile above Ashland village on Middleton road, to the Roslindale A. A. clubhouse in Exeter street, is to be covered. This is the first time in the history of amateur athletics in this country that such a contest has been held.

YANKEES CHALLENGE FOR PONY POLO CUP

LONDON, April 29.—H. P. Whitney, on behalf of the American Polo Association, has challenged the Hurlingham Polo Club for the American polo cup. There has been no course for the cup since 1905, but Whitney will meet, May 4, to decide upon a date for the series of three matches, which probably will be about the middle of June.

The American polo cup has been held by the British club since 1886.

MONEY HAS MALARIA, BUT NOT PNEUMONIA

President John I. Taylor emphatically denied to-day that Jack Money, the hitting left fielder of the Red Sox, has pneumonia, which was announced in one of the morning papers.

"There isn't a word of truth that Money has anything worse than an attack of malaria. The club's doctor told him he had better keep out of the game till he got it out of his system, but he will soon be in harness again."

GEORGETOWN'S FAST NINE FOR NORTH ADAMS

NORTH ADAMS, April 29.—Manager John H. Flaherty has received an offer that, while it will receive very serious consideration, has also some serious handicaps. It is none other than the placing of the whole Georgetown University base ball team in North Adams as the team to represent the city for the season.

The offer came to Manager Flaherty through William A. O'Hearn, a former North Adams boy, now a member of a firm of attorneys, Pilfrith & O'Hearn of Washington. Attorney O'Hearn has come to acquaintance with the management and many of the players of the Georgetown team.

Upon repeated suggestion from him, they finally acceded and agreed to come here for a price which is very reasonable considering the class of the Georgetown team, which is one of the fastest college clubs in the country. The team would be willing to report here if the offer is accepted, the last game being on Nov. 1, after college closes.

The handicaps to the acceptance at once of the offer are that Manager Flaherty has already a team engaged, the members of which are due to report here May 10 for tryout.

Manager Flaherty, even if he was sure that the Georgetown team would be just exactly what the city would desire as a representative team, could not, as a business man and manager of reputation, throw down the men who have been engaged, many of them have passed up of fers to play elsewhere.

The offer has been taken under consideration, but Manager Flaherty will have his team report May 10, as originally planned.

"MIKE" POWERS.

"Doc" is gone, but the fans won't forget him. With Ferguson and Fogarty, he will take his place as the gentlest remembered of local ball players who have died here while still in the ranks, and those who had the advantage of knowing him personally, of admiring his sturdy manhood, of warming under his sunny disposition, of laughing at his humor, will never feel exactly the same at seeing the Athletics play without him.

—From an article in the Philadelphia North American, written by George M. Graham.

SPRINGFIELD HAS ITS REAL OPENING TO-DAY

SPRINGFIELD, April 29.—Springfield's baseball season will start will start with this is the real opening, as events outlined for "Pennant day" will show. So far the team has been having enough good luck to do league for one season, but the field will be in such good shape and ready for the Book good for a fresh and real beginning.

There will be parade and the raising of the flag of honor to-day, and there will undoubtedly be better baseball than has been played so far. Hartford, the runner-up to the champions, will be the opponent, and it is up to Murray Parker to put the Hartforders.

Yesterday the rain left the field soaking wet, and the Northampton game had to be postponed. But there was enough dry to permit practice, and Manager Zelder had his players working out, brushing up on signals, hitting and general play.

CAN YOU SOLVE THE PUZZLES? They are by Sam Loyd, in next Sunday's AMERICAN.

Baseball News and Notes

The Cubs have finally got into the lead in the race. It won't be an easy matter to displace them with Johnny Evers back in the game.

Watch the Red Sox climb. It looks like the hardest club in the league to shake down. A few more games will show up the situation a little better.

Cy Young again shut his teams from Detroit. The Tigers seem to have found Cy's goat.

Russ Hammond has got in good standing in the league by beating the pets of Detroit and Cleveland.

Even the Pirates have to bow to Roger Bresnahan's St. Louis Browns. There may be a few other teams that can make the same indictive before the season is far advanced.

Catcher Bobby Woods, the veteran backstop of the Toledo team, was severely injured in batting practice. One of the pitchers threw a ball, which he attempted to dodge. It struck him on the head, breaking one of his ears. He will be out of the game for about a month.

Young has the tobacco habit in a rather peculiar way. He chews all the time he is pitching, but never tastes the weed unless in the box, on the day that he is to pitch. Young takes a good-sized chunk out to the ball park and just before the game begins he takes a life-size dose in his mouth.

Mobile has closed a deal with President Comiskey of the Chicago Americans for the purchase of Catcher Shaw. Shaw played with the Boston Americans in 1907. Mobile has also bought Pitcher Pfeil from the Shreveport team. He belongs to Cincinnati.

Little Rock of the Southern League has purchased Pitcher Jack O'Connor is manager of Little Rock.

Maloney, late of Brooklyn, is now in his line. He is batting to beat the band for Baltimore, and is batting to date .390.

Hanifan, who covers third for the Insects, is batting down his job quietly. Pitcher Butler and Catcher Lewis are the only men who have been with him longer than Hanifan.

When the Jersey City team won the pennant in 1905 the club started the season by winning sixteen straight games. There is a runner going the rounds that "Bob" Harris, owner of the Skeeters, has made a wager of $1,000 between the players if they duplicate this record.

Toronto is going at a very nice clip. They are now in the Canadian city, but Kelly is going to have another winner. They think differently over there.

Hummel of Brooklyn might play shortstop with a little more pep. He is pretty fast.

Umpire Johnstone should take voice culture lessons or use a megaphone. His announcements are frequently the worst of any official in either major league.

Two Pirate pitchers have been introduced to baseball by Roger Bresnahan, one of whom is the famous Southpaw Morris and the other Adams. Both of these youngsters are going to be heard from in league games. The pitcher, of course, still sticks to them, and Frank Bowerman wears them on his shins. Perhaps after a time Bresnahan will be just as common as chest protectors.

There'll soon have Clark Griffith's goat in Cincinnati. Some of the critics announced that Griff is going to bench Mike Regan and take a regular position himself. Such things are always overdone.

George Moriarty is making the best of his life in Detroit. There were many New York fans who regarded Moriarty as a dub, but he has now settled about as much on the New York team as he did on the Tigers. Moriarty fits well in Detroit.

Everybody is asking, "Will the Giants hit?" This is the question. No matter how good the pitching staff is, a team can't win a pennant or even a championship if it doesn't hit. The Sox were champions because they had a team of four runners and not a single. Detroit is winning games because Cobb, Crawford, Jones and Coughlin can hit. It looks as if McGraw's chaser must get busy, and get busy quick, or the Giants will be among the also rans. Pitching and fielding are all right, but there are capable men on the bench waiting to step into the Anderson, Devore, Doyle and Merkle positions.

C. Barger has been going again. He has been in the American League three times only to be released. The Cubs, Red Sox and Athletics all had good pitching for the Boston Americans this spring, but has been sent back to Rochester.

Notes of the Red Sox Game

A terrible slaughter of the innocent.

Rus Ford, who twirled the last half of the game for the Hilltoppers, is a member of the pitching family of that name who hail from Minneapolis, Minn. Rus has a brother Grant, who once pitched for Minneapolis, and has a brother who is one of the star amateur twirlers of Minneapolis.

Steele fanned three men in the fifth inning and the first batter in the next, making four in a row.

Speaker walloped one that hit the right field fence about four feet from the top. This is one of the longest hits of the season on the Huntington Avenue grounds.

The Stallings bunch were troubled with batter fingers. Six errors look like they were suffering from something.

Every man on the team with the exception of Steele scored a hit. Good old Steele got as far as third a couple of times but could not get over.

Steele did not let up in his good work on the rubber until the last inning, and then he just went to the bad for a few minutes. In this round two triples and a single all in a row netted one run.

Hall managed to keep up his record, which he established several days ago in the strike-out line. He assaulted the air two out of four attempts yesterday.

Quinn, who was pounded so hard by the Sox, has been touted as a phenom and one of the best of the season.

Demmet's box when he batted for Quinn in the fifth inning was a long fly to Gessler.

In the first frame Speaker's tap hit Lord while the latter was going to second.

Ford seemed to be as wild as a hawk when he went in in the fifth inning and started the round by hitting Lord and Stahl and then during the rest of the round gave two free tickets to first.

McConnell and Niles are the only members of the locals who did not connect safely during the game. However, each got on base and scored.

Engle made the fans sit up and take notice when he heaved the ball to the plate, cutting off Carrigan, who was attempting to score on a sacrifice fly by Steele. Engle was in an awkward position to throw but got the ball away in fine style.

Steele sent nine men to the bench via the strike-out route.

The Red Sox more than batted around during that terrible fourth inning and in the fifth they came mighty near doing it. Eight men taking a turn at swatting.

This was the first batting bee the fans have enjoyed this season and they certainly took advantage of the chance to yell.

Austin could easily have scored in the ninth inning on Engle's double, but Duke Farrell held him at third. George McConnell's single put Austin across, so the result is the same.

A pair of jackies kept the bleacherites and many of the fans amused by loud rooting. While all tabs was in progress some one yelled "Swat 'em, there," and for a second the tars hesitated.

Stahl managed to get hit with a pitched ball twice. An old trick of his.

Ball, who played such a shiftless game in the second encounter, played a flawless game yesterday, proving that it was only one of the off days that come to all ball players when he made the three muffs out of six chances.

Speaker led with the stick, getting a double and a triple.

Flags at the ball parks all over the circuit were at half mast yesterday on account of the funeral of Doc Powers, the athlete's catcher.

BOSTON MOTOR CLUB TO HAVE NEW QUARTERS

By J. C. KERRISON.

The Boston Motor Club is shortly to have quarters of its own, where its members can enjoy themselves to their hearts' content and entertain their friends. This notion was mentioned again at a well attended meeting of the club held at the Hotel Victoria last evening. When Colonel Horace G. Kemp, the president, called the meeting to order there was a particularly large attendance, and the report of the special committee on club quarters was received. This committee recommended the securing of a special suite of rooms at the Victoria, which seemed particularly adapted to the wants and purposes of the club, and it was the unanimous opinion of the meeting that the committee should make arrangements for the same.

The quarters in question comprise three good sized rooms on the Newbury street side of the hotel, with a fourth slightly detached from the same. These quarters can be reached by a special entrance from Newbury street and are so situated as to be very private, as well as handy for social affairs and pleasure. The annual dinner and dance, as well as the other necessary adjuncts are unquestionably the best that have been presented for the consideration of the meeting, and everyone seems to feel that the club did just the right thing in taking the action which it did last evening.

The membership of the club is showing a steady growth, and the officers are confident that before the expiration of another month the club will have a bona fide paid up membership of over three hundred.

The annual meeting and banquet of the Malden Automobile Club will be held at Belmont on May 7, at which time many matters of vital interest will be considered and disposed of. The latest will be one of the big affairs of the year. Going social season, the leading motorists of this section having been invited to enjoy the festivities.

NELSON WILL FIGHT.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 28.—That the fight with "Packey" McFarland, the Chicago champion lightweight, at Colma, Cal., July 5, has been cancelled was denied by Battling Nelson, who is appearing at a local theatre. Nelson says, owing to theatrical engagements, he was obliged to postpone the match until September 9.

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

BIG ENGLISH MARATHON.

The English hold their big Marathon on Saturday over a course from Windsor Park to Stamford Bridge, and there is some talk of a new wonder from Italy.

His name is Alfredo Mingbette and he is a friend of Dorando Pietri. He has already tried himself over the course, which he made in what the English papers call fair time.

There is a wonder from Spain, Juan Fravena by name, who is coming to make smash of all records.

France has entered fifteen men, among whom are some very smart distance runners.

Good Tailors and Bad Tailors

There's two kinds of tailors, good and bad. There's the one who offers to make a suit of clothes at a price that won't cover the cost of trimmings alone on a good suit, and should he really give such good cloth, such fine style and superior workmanship as he promises at the low price he advertises, it would be necessary for him, in order to make any profit, to get everything except buttons and linings for nothing. Then there is the tailor who wouldn't make a cheap shoddy suit if he could, who tells you frankly that he can't buy good wearing cloth cheaply enough, nor satisfactory workmanship low enough, to enable him to turn out a good suit for less than $20. It can't be done, and as Boston's original Popular Price Tailor, with 36 years of experience, we know what we are talking about.

LONDON AFTER JOHNSON AND KETCHEL BOUT

By IGOE.

NEW YORK, April 29.—London wants that Johnson-Ketchel fight, wants it mighty bad, and is going to have it, too, if it is a possible chance. There seem to have given up the idea of a Johnson-Langford affair, for Lord Dunberry, formerly a member of the N. S. C., communicated with Willie Britt and asked him if $12,500 would satisfy the Michigan wonder, providing he succeeded in coaxing Johnson to fight.

Britt immediately cabled Dunberry that he would like to fight, but that he couldn't under the circumstances, as he was under contract to fight for Coffroth. Besides, Britt thought that two-minute rounds, the vogue in England, would put Ketchel at a disadvantage.

Then Britt got another message. It said that the associates of Lord Dunberry were willing to give Ketchel $15,000 for his end, and wanted to know if that would do if Johnson accepted the same amount. They further suggested that Coffroth come to England and referee the match and if Britt were agreeable they would see that Coffroth did this, that they had no promoter of their own, and that Coffroth could go ahead and make arrangements just as if it were for his Colma arena. They want the fight and to see it and do not care about the money end.

They're real fans over there. Coffroth is about the only man who holds the key to this arrangement.

Under the circumstances it looks good. Certainly he couldn't lose, and may be that won't make the National Sporting Club but under the collar.

Out California way, where they raised Jeffries, they're not very charitable in their remarks about his grand declaration, —that fight word. Nor is that was supposed to get the white race right in matters pugilistic. They won't have it any other way than that Jeff won't be carried about it, and that the investigated word was fished out of him. Quite obvious manager's garnish. Here's what one San Francisco paper says, a paper that has always been a staunch supporter of the big husky timber:

Decided myself, eh? Well if he feels that way about it and we don't believe that it is even safe to drop, why doesn't he post a forfeit or cover some of the $1,000,000 he claims he has as sure as can be? Why, he's been a sitting to Jeff's every whim. Besides insists on Johnson fighting Ketchel, first. What for? Is Jeffries a bond holder interested in the Ketchel-Johnson affair? Mr. Jeffries is going to take something of a fighter to run that question at, mind-big, dumbbell-big likes.

So all's don't you quit loafing the patient public. It is getting plain that you won't be ready to fight the black champion for at least a year and a half. Now, do you suppose that the fans are going to sit around and twiddle their thumbs watching you take in theatrical matinees?

Just a fact, Mr. Jeffries, that the wise old sin business is a bond bill scheme to advertise your contemplated trip to Europe during next year and 1910? And isn't it true, Jeff, that by the time you get back to meet Mr. Johnson you will be able to swap your fingers in the face of the first man who proposes such a thing? No, Jeffries, the rough stuff won't go out here. Predict all you like, Jeff, but you can in Gotham. We refuse to fall.

Send all bunkum, but that ought to make the old fellow sore, eh? The funny thing about it is that they are wrong—dead wrong. Jeff is taking care

John L. Sullivan's Column

One of the latest ideas in the racing game which has come to my notice is betting championships in heats like a trotting race is now decided

Of course, this scheme comes from Texas, the home of game sports and one promoter made the proposition to a Chicago fighter to mail a bum with Sandy Black Dwyer at Waukegan. The match is to be for the best two out of three matches, as in trotting, and Knockville and one in Nashville. He guarantees that the losses in the three places will total $12,000

It's certainly an original idea, but won't be taken very seriously by the top-liners in the game world

False, isn't it, for a fighter to lay up in one heat and then get down heavy on the next one, flooding the pocketbooks with checks and create the same scandal which often arises in the turf game. Which we hear about

The promoter sends out the information that the bouts would be put on a week apart so as to permit the men to get into shape.

Let wrestlers work on something like that [illegible] the athletes call for [illegible] out of three falls, providing the winner

There is some logic in a darling's head at that to do away a fast [illegible] take the fighting out bridge, for instance.

There is no limit of time, no reason for the fighter to tire at it if from each other through a succession contest, and the winner would certainly come in fit for consideration and no matter how large the purse, he would certainly earn it

The usual method of covering prize fights would be done away with, and more sunshine would get the fans of the ages would be the proper thing, and the fighters could go to it in earnest, for the fighters are at present here, something like this if the said it happens to bust

"Seems hard to believe what?" asked Benjamin.

"Benny, no," replied Angelica. "I don't mean that. You know I didn't. I believe everything you tell me. I couldn't imagine you saying anything that wasn't true—only when you are silly things about me. What was it you said, really?"

Benjamin pressed it, and she thanked him. "I hadn't forgotten," she confessed. "I just wanted to hear you say it again. But I really think you said it more nicely the first time. You wouldn't like to try it once more, would you?"

"I believe you're making fun of me," said Benjamin, stupidly.

"I'm not," declared Angelica. "But why should you? I can't imagine why you should. There doesn't seem to be any thing in an ordinary little creature like me to inspire it."

What Mamma Said Doesn't Go.

"Oh!" cried Benjamin. "She doesn't know that she's the most wonderful of all women in the world—that there's never been in all the past a girl like her body approaching her, and that there never will be another. She doesn't—"

"Mamma says that she thinks I take me in appearance and disposition what she was my age," interrupted Angelica, not very judiciously.

Benjamin said nothing to that, but it was quite evident he did not think M a's claim had any foundation of f

"Look you, Bennie, dear, I am sure, am I? Where did you find it out?"

"And the smartest, most heartless and unrelenting of all women."

THE JOURNAL OF A NEGLECTED WIFE

SYNOPSIS.

The wife in the story, after tortures of suspicion, has come to certainty that some other woman has won her husband's love. She has detected perfume on his coat sleeve and shoulder, she has found an unsigned note to her husband in a woman's handwriting, she has found a new photograph of Mamie, her husband, of which he had told her nothing, and which he weakly explains that he had taken for the Lawyers' Association. She has resorted to every artifice to preserve her beauty and youthfulness. She has been torn for months by agonies of doubt as to whether she will be able to revive his love for her, or whether the unknown rival she hates will lure him farther and farther from her.

Unable longer to endure suffering in silence and inaction, she decides to follow her husband and find out who "she" is, and secures a strange costume, hat and heavy veil as a disguise.

Readowing her husband from the time he leaves his office, she hears him phone his own house that he is "detained by business"; then phone the other woman" that he will be "right out." She follows him to a subway train, and when he leaves the train follows until she sees him enter a handsome apartment building.

The wife is visited by a woman friend who has lost her husband by death, and though the husband had been coarse, often brutal and dissipated, and even faithless to his marriage vows, to that friend he had any difference in his love toward her, and she notices him and cannot be comforted. The heroine of the story feels that her friend's husband is nearer to her, even in death, than her own husband is to her, though they live under the same roof and eat at the same table.

On Sunday afternoon, when sitting alone, the telephone bell rings, but when she picks up the receiver no one answers. She feels that it was the other woman who called up, in the hope that Horace would answer the telephone. Hearing the wife's voice, she did not answer.

August 15th.

I SAW him looking at my hands this morning. He may have done it almost unconsciously. But all through breakfast I was miserably conscious of how dark and withered they were.

Oh, how cruelly hands show age!

And he used to call them beautiful!

And they were bountiful, soft and white, with tapering fingers and a delicate tracery of veins. But now the veins seem more like wires, the knuckles larger, and the skin has become yellow and leathery.

I have been studying them mercilessly, holding them in different positions that I may know how they look best and worst. When they are closed the skin is more distinctly drawn, and they do not look so wrinkled, but when I lay them flat on the table the skin on the back gathers in little folds and they look old—old!

But worst of all is when I hold up my arm and let the hand droop at the wrist—there is something almost clawlike about it then.

Oh, why do not women die before they grow old?

August 17th.

I HAVE been reading a most perfect little book in the form of a woman's diary. The publishers have enthusiastically proclaimed it a "marvelous revelation of a woman's heart."

Would any woman ever reveal her heart in carefully wrought epigrams or in an extravagant series of triphtated adjectives? What strained attempts at cleverness and twinful striving for effect! In her desperate efforts to be brilliant and sensational, the author seems to have quite forgotten that it might also be effective merely to be true.

When just now I came to this sentence, I threw down the book in disgust and resentment.

It is all bluest over with oblivion now, but sometimes I experience a shuddering fearfully over the delicate whiteness of my arms, and fancying that I discern here and there the faint, faded suffusion of a bruise, my mind slunderingly recalls last. I be once more steeped in memory with his vulgar, terrifying silence shot with sharp, convulsive flames of blinding pain, memories which engulf me in a maelstrom of emotions, crushing, contusing, deadening, leaving me but a pallid, swooning shadow of myself.

Would any suffering woman on God's earth ever write like that? Why this book should have aroused in me such fierce resentment I hardly know, unless it is because my whole nature rebels at the thought of a woman's sacredness being handled forth with such mawkish sentimentalism and glaring artificiality.

Sunday, August 18th.

AGAIN it has happened—the telephone bell rang and no call.

And now I know it was not a mistake—that it was she.

Both times it has been on Sunday, the only day she cannot reach him at his office.

He had been in all morning, and had just gone out when the bell rang. And when I answered there was no response.

But this time Central shelled: "There's your party—go on."

Again I said "Hello!" but there was still no answer, nothing but that strange silence that seemed throbbing with some mysterious presence.

And then faint and faraway came a sound like a sob—a stifled sob. I listened tensely and for many moments, but there was no other sound.

Then I rang Central and asked where the call was from, but she could not tell me.

All day I have been haunted by the sound of that faint, distant sob.

What did it mean? Was she be unhappy? The thought that she may suffer, too, had never come to me, since I knew she loves him.

August 20th.

FOR several days he has seemed strangely harassed and worried.

He does not go out, but spends the evenings alone in his study. He avoids me and will see no callers. Says he is not well, but I know it is not that.

It is something about her. That another woman should have the power to make my husband suffer!

The same question beats always in my mind: Why did she ever let the thing happen? Why did she ever come into his life?

If I cannot bear to see him unhappy, if I could only share with him or help him in his trouble—yes, I would do even that!

I would lighten or bear, if I could, the suffering this woman has brought him.

But she shuts me out completely. Says he hopes I will not feel hurt, but that just now he would rather be alone.

Last night he could eat no dinner, until almost down the light burned in his room, and this morning he only took a cup of coffee and hurried off to the office.

August 21th.

HE was out until midnight last night—the first time for over a week. And this morning he came down to breakfast radiant. So whatever the trouble that was between them, it is over.

And that has made him happy? Oh, my husband, my dear husband!

Perhaps it was from a feeling of pity for me, or perhaps he suppliance filled him with a desire to give me some pleasure, too, for all through breakfast he talked to me, tried to take an interest in the house, and asked if there was anything he could send me.

After he had gone, I went up to his room, took from the closet the coat he had worn the night before. Yes, the odor of that faint, soft perfume still clung there. And on the shoulder was a long brown hair—shiny fine and with a glint of gold.

RACE CANDIDATES EVOLVE NEW VOTE-GETTING PLANS

Shirtwaist Party and Red Riding Hood Play to Be Utilized by Contestants.

HAT there will be some lively changes in the list of the contestants for the world-wide vacation tours offered by the BOSTON AMERICAN when the award of the special gold prizes is made at the end of this week's balloting, is a foregone conclusion. Many new faces are appearing in the list of candidates and they are taking a most prominent part in the proceedings.

One of the latest to enter the contest is Fred L. Jenney, who occupied 300 page of pages at the State House. He is the first House candidate in the world race, and his candidacy is one of the important topics of discussion on Beacon Hill right now. Leaders of all factions and of all House locals on both sides of the State Government have united in nominating the youngster.

Following are the signatures which appear on the nomination blanks of young Jenney:

Senator Theodore Spalding, of Cambridge, official floor leader of the Senate; Senator James H. Doyle, of Boston, Democratic leader in the Senate; Senator James F. Sears, of Mansfield, leader of the Republican insurgents in the Senate; Representative Elias H. Blaney, of Newton, official floor leader of the House of Representatives; Representative William L. Garceau, of Newton, Republican leader of the House; Representative Norman H. White, of Brookline, Republican leader and captain of the anti-Merger forces in the Legislature; Representative James H. Mellen, of Worcester, senior member of the House; Representative Bartholomew A. Brickley, of Boston, Democratic leader and junior member of the Legislature; Representative Thomas F. Bliss of Malden; Representative David H. Shaw of Charlestown, Representative William H. O'Brien of Dorchester, Representative Timothy F. Callahan of Boston, Representative Charles F. McCarthy of Marlboro, Representative William J. Grafton of Lawrence and Representative John F. Dwyer of Weymouth.

After Gold Prize.

Foremost among those who are working for the house of going to Europe and around the world is Harry Baldwin, No. 3 Holborn place, Roxbury. He is a student at the Roxbury High School and the candidate of the Congregation Adath Jeshurun. His brother is the proprietor of the Old South Moving Pictures House. He has polled a goodly number of subscriptions and promises more before the week-end.

Another new candidate to enter these lists is Miss Lauten place, South Boston. She is the 15-year-old daughter of a shirtwaist party to be given at Bloomfield Hall this week by the Franklin Athletic Club. She will perform various South Boston dances in costume. Her sister, Miss Estelle, will lead the shirtwaist march, for which prizes will be given. John J. Halloran will be floor director, assisted by John T. Powers. Miss Estelle is the Scotch candidate in the tours to Europe contest.

Benjamin Morris, No. 101 Waumbeck street, Roxbury, that candidate of the R. H. White Company employees, comes in today with a large bundle of subscription blanks. He is out to win and is working night and main to this end.

Red Riding Hood is in.

Mabel G. Evans, No. 21 Spring Park avenue, Jamaica Plain, a prominent candidate in the contest, takes the leading role this evening in a play given by the Boylston Congregational Church, Jamaica Plain. She will impersonate Red Riding Hood, and many of her workers in the Tours Contest have promised to be in the audience.

Nominations are still open, and now is the time to come in. Get fifteen nominations and then you are ready to begin voting. Isn't it easy? Isn't that a small task when you consider the generosity of the offer? Of course it is! Come on now! Come into the race and BANG! away we all go, racing poll until over the borders of the old world and enjoying the princely and rare sights and pleasures offered by the various capitals of the old world, with the best transportation that modern travel affords.

AD MEN'S CLUB TO ADVANCE BOSTON

To incite their work even more successful than before, the Ad Men's Club of Boston is in the future to be known as the Pilgrim Publicity Association. At the annual meeting held last night at the Boston City Club it was voted to reorganize completely and broaden the scope of its work. The committee adopted a new constitution and bylaws which provide for the guidance of Boston and New England by efficient and practical advertising methods. A modeled association is to-rather to be a publicity bureau for the Boston business associations, and it will promote among merchants a better acquaintance and better understanding of the power of modern advertising.

The Ad Men's Club was organized in 1904. It then had fifty members. Membership now it has more than 100. Last night George W. Coleman, publisher of the Christian Endeavor World, was elected president; W. N. Fadgemake of the A. A. Vantine Company, first vice-president; George R. Gallup of the Cosmopolitan Magazine, second vice-president; Carroll J. Swan, secretary; Dwight M. Grant, treasurer, and Henry R. Humphrey, Arthur B. Horton and Walter Worden, executive committee.

BUSINESS MEN FIGHT FOR LOW WHEAT TARIFF

The reported intention of the United States Senate to increase the tariff on wheat from 25 to 30 cents a bushel, and this in defiance of the national sentiment aroused by the Patten wheat corner, has aroused bitter opposition among the big bakers and grocers in Boston. They find their business dropped to the paralytic stage because of prohibitive prices.

A business men's committee has been organized to fight the increase. It is proposed to do thoroughly alarm the vast multitude of flour consumers, dealers, etc., that they will imake such a mighty protest to their Senators and Representatives that they will not dare refuse to alleviate the exasperting and intolerable conditions of the present.

Most of the Boston merchants believe ten cents on wheat is ample protection for the farmers. The following committee has been informally organized to make further plans for a permanent organization:

Frank H. Shepard of the George G. Fox Company, William J. Wadleigh of the Webster, Thomas Company, John H. Wiley of the Loose-Wiles Company, Hiram H. Logan of the Logan-Johnson Company, Archibald L. Stark, president of the Boston Retail Company.

"We will organize the trade and also the consumers and believe we can compel such a public protest even the Senate will listen," said William Y. Wadleigh of the Webster-Thomas Company, grocers. "Our work has only started, but we mean business."

Hiram H. Logan of the Logan, Johnson Company, bakers' supplies, said:

"We must do something. We've had only one meeting, but are receiving the most encouraging letters. There is no doubt that we can show the Senate it is going too far. There is a limit to protection on wheat."

The committee informally organized in the office of the chairman, Frank H. Shepard, in the Merchants' Trade Building, and another meeting will be called there in a few days.

IMPORTANT DEALINGS IN REAL ESTATE

Sales of realty were reported in good volume to-day, all parts of the city proper and the suburbs being represented in the trading.

The four-and-one-half-story brick mercantile building and 1,395 square feet of land at Nos. 62-64 Commercial street, near the corner of Cross street, which was purchased a few days ago by Frederick S. Goodwin, has been sold by him to Chin W. Kwock et al., trustees, who own the two adjoining estates at Nos. 68-72. The property is assessed for a total of $26,000, of which $20,700 is on the land.

J. Murray Howe, representing the grantee, Marion P. Hyndman, Florence C. M. Harding et al., and Martha E. Pratt et al., has sold the property at 343-347 Harrison street, between Fleet and Prince streets. The purchaser is Angelina Cranitsas for investment, and the terms are private. The parcel comprises a large three-story brick building and 570 square feet of land, assessed by the assessors at $12,400, of which $7,400 is on the land. P. Bernstein acted for the purchaser.

West Roxbury Sale.

Henry W. Savage reports that final papers have gone to record in the sale of a fine residential property in West Roxbury by Frederick J. Means to Frederick Perry of a new frame dwelling house and 5,750 square feet of land, on Bellevue street, and owned by Agnes Henderson of West Roxbury, who has built a number of first-class residences in that section within the last year. Annie C. Perry has conveyed to Mabel F. Smith of Dorchester, who bought for a home. The house, being new, is not yet assessed, but the land is given a valuation of 20 cents per foot.

Henry W. Savage reports that final papers have gone to record in the sale for the executors of the estate of Ellen Gray to Peter F. Kelley, who bought for investment, of a two-story brick store on the southeast corner of Lexington street, Charlestown, the property consists of 2,000 square feet, containing a large store and two tenements, and three frame dwellings, numbered 72 to 76 on Lexington street, together with a frame stable and a lot of land, containing 6,000 square feet, the total assessment being $17,500.

Frank S. Mason, Charlestown broker, reports the final passing of papers on the deed of land at the corner of Highland avenue and Thorpe street, Somerville. The lot contains about 4,000 square feet of land, assessed at 65 cents a foot. Nellie E. Card, et al., transfer to Herman Meyer, who buys for improvement.

In the city proper the four three-story and basement brick buildings at Nos. 3, 4, 5 and 6 Burnham street, near Washington street, assessed for a total of $18,600, have been sold by Charles E. Evans to William S. Melcher. The 3,791 square feet of land are assessed for a total of $8,600.

Dorchester Transfers.

In South Boston the frame house and 5,750 square feet of land at No. 787 East Broadway, corner of M street, have been sold by Hattie P. Bennett et al., trustees, to Katherine G. Devine. There is an assessment of $4,600 on the land.

C. E. Jennings of the Old South Building has sold for Fred S. Davis Everett a lot of land containing 2,000 square feet, on the corner of Prospect and Spring, Chelsea. J. P. Smith of Melrose is the buyer and he intends building for investment.

WALL STREET NEWS TIPS FOR THE INVESTOR

WALL STREET, New York, April 29.—As a direct result of the improved condition of the steel trade, stocks are very strong. London contributes to the improvement because the Turkish revolution seems over. All departments are strong in the foreign market.

$ $ $

Settlement of the Turkish dispute is perhaps the most important reason for the advance in Harriman stocks. As the reading of the column will know, E. H. Harriman is going to Europe to negotiate a new loan of gold for the Union Pacific Railroad. The loan at first included Japan, but when the disturbance broke out in Turkey postponed his voyage until July, by which time he hopes to have the matter perfected. Now that the Turkish situation has cleared up so rapidly that it is hoped European banks will be willing to part with their gold in July in exchange for Union Pacific bonds.

$ $ $

Other developments are of a regulation character. The familiar story of Good roads financing was repeated on a few speculative establishments. The stock exchange has confirmed a new voting power on Rock Island common. This was on a plan that otherwise has been plain in Rock Island's advances in early dividends on preferred shares. A split letter is entitled to half the voting power of a common. The gross earnings of Rock Island proper and the Frisco increased $556,622 last month, a showing which quite virtual Atchison's exhibit for the same weeks.

$ $ $

There is no longer any doubt that gross traffic is recurring at a double-quick pace. The advance prices prove it. Wholesale is only one bit of evidence. Wholesale houses report that they are doing business on greater volume than usual even in prosperous times. But without the stock to run so low that there is a positive need of buying of all kinds of goods, from cotton stocks to steel rails. With money so easy it is possible for every sort of business to finance all its needs.

$ $ $

The fact that the Steel Trust has been able to earn $225,000,000 in the worst quarter of the panic evidently justifies what has been done by the officials in the stock market. The trust managers have been unfairly criticised as a result of their own mistake in failing to give the public full information regarding new orders. As industry business disappeared entirely when the first set in prices was made, and it was not until a month ago, when consumers were convinced that there would be no further cuts, that orders began coming in in a good rate. During the period when no business was coming the orders on the books were nearly all worked out, so that most of those now reported are new ones, and a phenomenal increase must be expected at the next quarterly report. Orders are coming so rapidly both to the trust and to some leading independents that the experts figure the mills will be running on full time by the first of July.

$ $ $

This means that the industrial panic is finally ended, and the only problem that now confronts Wall Street is as to the financing of a boom in stocks and in business at the same time. Fortunately for Wall Street, there is enough money to handle both this Summer, for, when the gold standard money is exhausted, the $300,000,000 of steel rail money can be printed. The gold mines are being pushed to their limit, so that the volume of cash is constantly growing.

$ $ $

The increase in the price of silver is helping materially. It is causing an incipient boom in Mexico. To what an extent has this movement gone that it is beginning to influence the price of Mexican National stock in New York. It is also having its effect on Boston stocks held by American investors, and indirectly this is putting life into the mining stock market and making it possible to pass over developments of the gold mines. The rail road stock boom promises to be followed by a mining stock boom, also.

$ $ $

The increase in silver is helping American Smelting & Refining stock, and the strength of that issue is bracing up Amalgamated. It begins to look as Is Boston has dome another piece of queer work in North Butte. The report from reliable authority is that, instead of finding the ore on the 2,000-foot level of such low quality that it would not pay to work, the company has struck at that place a ten-foot vein of eight per cent. copper. The result of this strike has been to advance the price of North Butte from 52 to 63 in two days.

$ $ $

A careful investigation of the buying of Reading seems to show that it is being taken in enormous blocks and connected with the management and with banks allied with the leading interests. They are taking the stock because of its enormous possibilities. It is only a matter of time when there will be a distribution of assets to the stockholders, somewhat like what was made by the First National Bank a few years ago. Reading is a big one are out a valuation of 200 for Reading, comparing it with other stocks in the market. Should the Supreme Court reverse the Reading case, the advance might easily take place within the next few weeks. There are also valuable equities in Ontario & Western, Delaware & Hudson, and Lackawanna that justify all the advances that has been displayed about them.

It must be understood, of course, that these figures are comparative. If wheat, Southern Railway, Louisville and Nashville, Frances F. Beale to William W. Sherman, Washington and Leighton streets, $1, R. Mary J. Vaughan to Eliza Flavell, Stoneland street, $1, Q.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

BIG SALES OF STEEL COMMON

By T. C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, April 29.—Strength of Steel common was a feature of the early trading as Wall street to-day, large blocks of from one to three thousand shares changing hands frequently at 55. There was considerable profit taking throughout the list.

Union Pacific seemed to be the other interest, and it declined ⅝ of a point. The demand for Wabash preferred continued, the issue selling at prices 50.

Other Gould issues were dealt in on a slight scale at advancing prices. Southern Railway common was also about a point each on fairly active buying. Rock Island shares also showed strength. Amalgamated Copper and Smelters were fractionally higher.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

American Beet Sugar Company's gross earnings for the year ended March 31 were $7,135,327, and the surplus after charges and the preferred stock dividend was $1,947,745.

Underwriters of the recent issue of 50,000 shares of Boston Consolidated stock at $11 per share did not receive any of the stock, it still having been taken up by shareholders or privileged parties.

Application will probably soon be made to list the 1,500,000 shares of the Nevada Consolidated on the New York Stock Exchange.

Erie railroad's March gross earnings were $4,-288,845, an increase of $919,500 over 1908, and net $1,462,902, an increase of $605,529.

TO REMODEL 16 'WRECKED' BATTLESHIPS

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The Navy Department announces that the sixteen battleships which made the trip around the world are to be remodelled, thus practically confirming the reports that have been current since the return of the fleet that the voyage practically wrecked the navy.

It has been reported at various times that masts had been sprung, that their electrical equipment, that the intricate electrical machinery, including the fire control, was hopelessly out of order and that other things had happened.

These facts seem to bear out the reports that the United States Navy to-day is practically useless and out of commission.

It is proposed to make of the sixteen battleships a type something like the old Monitor, save that the new type will have more freeboard. All the cumbersome superstructure which at present adorns the battleships and which affords a splendid mark for the enemy's guns will be taken off.

All that will appear above decks will be a turret for fore and aft and the funnels for the boilers and a wire wade-basket type of mast, which will be used for the fighting tops.

It is asserted by those who criticise the Navy Department that the remodelling is an admission that the armor belt on the battleships was improperly placed. The innovation raises the armor belt to a point where it will become more effective, because talking off the superstructure will, in a certain fad, raise the ships one foot higher in the water and consequently the armor belt will be in the desired position. The ships could not have been placed otherwise without danger of capsizing turtle or becoming unseaworthy.

It is the belief of the critics of the Navy Department that if twenty-five fleet class battleships in the navy only four are in condition for service.

CAN YOU SOLVE THE PUZZLES? They are by Sam Loyd, in next Sunday's AMERICAN.

LUNCHEON CLUB DINNER.

The Luncheon Club held its monthly dinner last night at Riverbank Court, Cambridge. Seventy-one members and guests were present. Rabbi Charles Fleischer made the talk of the evening on "Business and Ethics."

TELLS BIG RESULTS BY ADVERTISING

P. H. Magrane, president of the James A. Houston Company, delivered a remarkably interesting address to-day at the High School of Commerce on business methods and his views were listened to with rap attention. Mr. Magrane said that in retail business the balance of importance between the points of buying and selling is perfect, and that the better adapted management and conduct are to the maintenance of the equilibrium, the greater the success. He said:

"Trade will not approach without invitation. The means of its attraction is advertising.

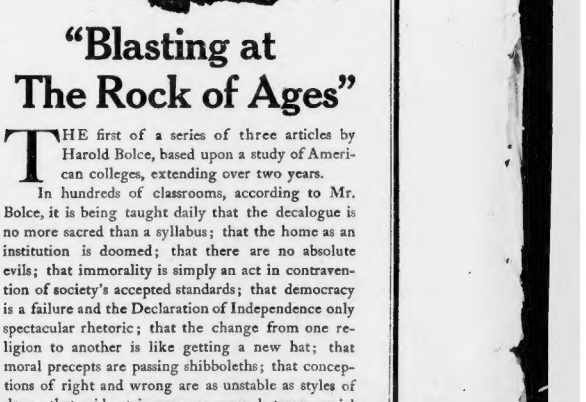
"Publicity of any kind is advertising, whether it be obtained by the name over a door, lettering on the tall fence of a country road, the envelope corner card or the letter heading of either an individual or a corporation, the window display of a retail store, or by full-page ads in the newspapers.

"Large agencies in all parts of the country, employing experts in various lines, offer advertising services of every conceivable kind. Through such agencies a major part of the best general advertising is done.

"Nearly every large business house, from the manufacturer to the retail store, has its own publicity department, where the important work of propagating business is carefully studied and executed.

"To the modern retail store the advertising department is an absolute necessity. The store comprising many departments is like unto as many different stores under the same roof. The publicity department in this manner resembles the newspaper agency which deals with many clients in various lines of trade. The store selects the announcements of numerous business managers and often prepares as many ads as there are departments in the store.

"Each is given space according to the importance of its announcements. The whole is then assembled into one concrete ad, surmounted by the name of the house and a general announcement. These features give to each section that importance which it would not have from only the standpoint of the merchandise which it separately presents. In other words, each section becomes a component part of an important event, usually arranged with time and care."



"Blasting at The Rock of Ages"

THE first of a series of three articles by Harold Bolce, based upon a study of American colleges, extending over two years.

In hundreds of classrooms, according to Mr. Bolce, it is being taught daily that the decalogue is no more sacred than a syllabus; that the home as an institution is doomed; that there are no absolute evils; that immorality is simply an act in contravention of society's accepted standards; that democracy is a failure and the Declaration of Independence only spectacular rhetoric; that the change from one religion to another is like getting a new hat; that moral precepts are passing shibboleths; that conceptions of right and wrong are as unstable as styles of dress; that wide stairways are open between social levels, but that to the climber children are an incumbrance; that the sole effect of prolificacy is to fill tiny graves; and that there can be and are holier alliances without the marriage bond than within it. These are some of the revolutionary and sensational teachings submitted with academic warrant to the minds of hundreds of thousands of students in the United States.

STRONG BILLS PRESENTED AT THE THEATRES

Andrew Mack and company are at Keith's this week in "Bluarney," and the star has his sweet voice with him.

"The Servant in the House," now being played at the Tremont Theatre, is one of the most-discussed dramas ever given in this city.

"The Runaway Girl" is a big winner at the Castle Square Theatre. The John Craig company is giving it a high-class production.

Marie Cahill's songs in "The Boys and Betty," at the Hollis Street Theatre, are all hits. Incidentally she is surrounded by a bevy of pretty girls.

"The Music Master," at the Majestic Theatre, shows no waning in popularity, and David Warfield is more impressive in the part than ever.

"Pinero," at the Howard, is a mystery, but there is one thing certain that it is a vaudeville act of intense interest.

"Montana" will succeed "Black Beauty" as the Grand Opera House play. The former is an exciting Western drama.

At the Boredoin Square Theatre this week there is a strong play and a first-class exhibition of moving pictures.

The "Ten" burlesquers at the Gaiety are a company of clever performers who have plenty to dig bones and unclinted applause.

Moving pictures and a high class vaudeville entertainment have made a big hit at the Globe Theatre.

"Shenandoah Ollcott in "Ragged Robin" comes to the Boston Theatre after "Via Wireless" goes away. Both are strong and made a stir during its run.

Edgett at the Bijou Dream is making big audiences laugh with his delightful act. There are other headliners in the show.

"Follies of 1908" will leave the Colonial Theatre after the Saturday night performance. This company has scored tremendously in Boston.

Few plays have achieved such quick success as "The Travelling Salesman," now at the Park Theatre. Everybody says it is a rare of merriment.

There will be a merry bunch of amateurs at the Columbia Theatre to-morrow evening, besides the "Yankee Doodle Girls."

DEPOSED COURT CLERK PLANS FIGHT

Alexander H. Trowbridge, the deposed clerk of the United States Circuit Court, whose resignation was peremptorily demanded by the judges to become effective July 1, is ready to carry the case to Washington. It is said to-day.

Charles K. Darling, now clerk of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, succeeds to the vacancy created.

An appeal will be made to Boardom Lodge to cause to have the deposed official reinstated.

Mrs. Lillian C. Tucker, the deputy clerk whose resignation was requested by Clerk Trowbridge, and who tendered it in the form of the rest, was reinstated yesterday by the judges and placed in charge of the office. Judge Lowell escorted Mrs. Tucker to the office which she left last Saturday, and, meeting the clerks, stated that Mrs. Tucker had been reinstated and that she was to take full charge of affairs there. Her word is to be obeyed to the letter and her rulings were mandatory.

What Should Be a Man's Object in Life?

Copyright, 1909, by American Journal-Examiner

Sermons in stones are familiar, but few take the trouble to dig them out. Certainly none looks for sermons in a one-cent evening newspaper.

At the same time, will you kindly think over and answer the question that heads this column?

Here we are, marooned for a few days on a flying ball of earth. We don't know how we got here. We don't know where we are going. We are full of beautiful and satisfying FAITH. But we don't KNOW.

Into this Universe, and WHY not knowing,
Nor WHENCE, like Water, willy-nilly flowing;
And out of it as Wind along the Waste,
I know not WHITHER, willy-nilly blowing.

That's the way Omar, the old tent-maker, puts it.

We drift from dinner to the theatre, thence to bed, thence to breakfast, thence to work, and so on. Or, if in hard luck, we struggle and wail, "cursing our day," or, more frequently, cursing society.

We rarely stop to think what it is all about, or what we are here for.

We know the pig's object in life. It has been beautifully and permanently outlined in Carlyle's "pig catechism." The pig's life object is to get fat and keep fat—to get his full share of swill and as much more as he can manage to secure. And his life object is worthy. By sticking at it he develops fat hams inside his bristles, and WE know, though he does not, that the production of fat hams is his destiny.

But our human destiny is NOT to produce fat hams. Why do so many of us live earnestly on the pig basis? Why do we struggle savagely for money to buy our kind of swill—luxury, food, etc.—and cease all struggling when that money is obtained?

Is fear of poverty and dependence the only emotion that should move us?

Are we here merely to STAY here and EAT here?

A great German scientist, very learned and about as imaginative as a wart hog, declares that the human face is merely an extension and elaboration of the alimentary canal—that the beauty of expression, the marvellous qualities of a noble human face, are merely indirect results of the alimentary canal's strivings to satisfy its want.

That is a hideous conception, is it not? But it is no more unworthy than the average human life, and the average existence has much to justify the German's speculations.

What SHALL we strive for? MONEY?

Get a thousand millions. Your day will come, and in due course the graveyard rat will gnaw as calmly at your bump of acquisitiveness as at the mean coat of the pauper.

Then, shall we strive for POWER?

The names of the first great kings of the world are forgotten, and the names of all those whose power we envy will drift to forgetfulness soon. What does the most powerful man in the world amount to standing at the brink of Niagara, with his solar plexus trembling? What is his power compared with the force of the wind or the energy of one small wave sweeping along the shore?

The power which man can build up within himself, for himself, is nothing. Only the dull reasoning of gratified egotism can make it seem worth while.

Then what IS worth while? Let us look at some of the men who have come and gone, and whose lives inspire us? Take a few at random: Columbus, Michael Angelo, Wilberforce, Shakespeare, Galileo, Fulton, Watt, Hargreaves—these will do.

Let us ask ourselves this question: "Was there any ONE THING that distinguished ALL their lives, that united all these men, active in fields so different?"

Yes. Every man among them, and every man whose life history is worth telling, did something for THE GOOD OF OTHER MEN.

Hargreaves, the weaver, invented the spinning-jenny, and his invention clothes and employs hundreds of millions.

Galileo perfected the telescope, spread out before man's intellect the grandeur of the universe. Wilberforce helped to awaken man's conscience. He freed millions of slaves. Columbus gave a home to great nations. We thrive to-day because of his noble courage. Michael Angelo and Shakespeare stirred human genius to new efforts, and fed the human mind—a task more worthy than the feeding of the human stomach. We ride in Fulton's steamboats, and Watt's engines pull us along.

Men who are truly great have DONE GOOD to their fellow-man. And the greatest Soul ever born on earth came to urge but one thing upon humanity, "LOVE ONE ANOTHER."

Get money if you can. Get power if you can. Then, if you want to be more than the ten thousand million unknown mingled in the dust beneath you, see what good you can do with your money and your power.

If you are one of the many millions who have not and can't get money or power, see what good you can do without either.

You can help carry a load for an old man. You can encourage and help a poor devil trying to reform. You can set a good example for children. You can stick to the men with whom you work, fighting honestly for their welfare.

The day will come when we shall prefer helping our neighbor to robbing him—legally—of a million dollars.

Do what good you can NOW, while it is unusual, and have the satisfaction of being a pioneer and an eccentric.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

AN INTELLECTUAL FEAST

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

For a number of years I have read with pleasure and profit your editorials in the AMERICAN. Lately I secured in book form a number of editorials taken from the Hearst papers, and I want to thank you for an intellectual feast.

In the future I am going to read and think more.

In the book above referred to I came across an editorial entitled "France Has Learned Her Lesson," and I was much interested and surprised to know that so much has been done in France for workmen.

May I suggest your writing an editorial choosing for your subject: "What Can an American Know of America Who Only America Knows?" with possibly apologies to Kipling.

TOO MUCH FOR LIGHT

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

If gas can be profitably manufactured and sold in Boston at 75 cents a thousand feet, then electricity can be sold at less than $70 per arc lamp per year for street lighting purposes and at eight cents a kilowatt or less for private consumption, with a lower figure for power. And the company can make a good profit. The item of fuel is the determining factor in each case. Yet Boston is contracting for five years to pay prices around $100 for street arc lamps, and private consumers are paying 10 per cent, too much for electric illumination. This is something that hits rich and poor alike.

Success After Failure

Cervantes

By Rev. Thomas B. Gregory

THE genius whose inimitable humor girdled the globe with the laughter that has made humanity shake its sides incessantly for more than three hundred years was himself a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief.

With just a fair education Cervantes began his career as a poet. He knew that he could rhyme, and he thought that he could write poetry, but, being a man of sense, he soon discovered that he was mistaken, and cutting the Muses he offered himself at the altar of Mars.

For five or six years Cervantes was a "soldier bold," following the wars in various lands.

In the famous battle of Lepanto, where Don John so effectively smashed the great Turkish Armada, Cervantes bore a brilliant part, covering himself with glory, but unfortunately receiving a wound which practically ended his career as a soldier.

After 1571, the year of Lepanto, Cervantes led a sort of roving life, by land and sea, and on one of his adventures was captured by a pack of Algerine pirates, by whom he was kept in slavery for several years.

His treatment during the period of captivity was infernal, and would have killed anyone not possessing a strong constitution and an iron will.

Finally ransomed by friends, Cervantes returned to his native land.

He was at this time thirty-six, and must begin all over again.

His left hand had been shattered at Lepanto, but his right was as sound as ever, and with that good right hand he would write, not poetry this time, but prose.

The result was "Galatea"—and "Galatea" fell flat. He had tried poetry, he had tried the navy, and now he would try writing for the stage.

Thirty odd plays were reeled off. Of these dramatic productions only two survived for any length of time.

And then came a long period, of twenty years' duration, during which the man was well nigh in total eclipse, writing nothing, or if writing, not publishing.

It was twenty years of toil, a grim, dogged, spiritless struggle for life, the brave husband and father turning his hand to anything that came along in the effort to keep wife and children alive.

For a while during this misery period he was commissary of the fleet, but that was a political job and did not last long, politics being in those days, as it is to-day, a most uncertain patron.

We next find Cervantes begging the King for something that would give him bread and begging in vain.

About 1598, when in the fiftieth year of his life, a kind-hearted old prior, taking pity on the greatest man that Spain was ever to produce, gave him the job of collecting certain tithes that were due him in the district of Argamasilla. In attempting to collect these tithes Cervantes was set upon by the enraged villagers, beaten, and cast into prison.

It would look as though the sun was indeed now about to set in the night that should know no morning, but in the La Mancha jail the tide was to experience a glorious turn.

In that prison Cervantes wrote the first part of "Don Quixote," the matchless work which was destined to give to its author's name a world-wide and eternal renown.

Ask the scholars to name the "Big Four" in the world of letters, the unapproachable quartet in the field of literary creation, and you may be reasonably sure that they will answer, "Homer, Dante, Shakespeare and Cervantes."

Cervantes did not get the bread for wife and children, which was uppermost in his thought when he began his first great work in the La Mancha jail, but he got what he probably was not thinking of at the time—immortality!

Little Bobbie's Pa

By William F. Kirk

WELL, Pa sed, wen he calm hom the other nite, well, I guess I am bad, what?

Nobody sed you was bad, sed Ma.

You doant understand wat I meen, sed Pa. Wat I meen is this, I jest licked two (2) good men on the street. I doant like to talk about myself, sed Pa, but one (1) of the men wich I licked was Jack Johnsing, & the other man was Joe Jeffries. I suppos you mean Jim Jeffries, sed Ma. Oh, yes, sed Pa, so it was. It was Jim Jeffries that I licked, & Bob Johnson.

Way back in the old days, Pa sed, I used to lick all them tough guys, & I have did it ever since. I doant know my own strength, sed Pa.

Where did you git all this fiery spirit, this dee-sire to fite? sed Ma. I thought you was a peeceeful man, sed Ma.

So I am, at times, sed Pa. I have ben peeceeful so long that everybody has picked me up for a rum dum, & now I am going to fite. I am going to fite for my altars & my fires, sed Pa. Lend me to sombody wich wants to be a gladiator, Pa sed.

Now on the square, sed Ma, speeking as man to woman, did you whip Mister Jeffries & Mister Johnsing? I did, sed Pa: I beet them un-mercifully. I very well whipped them, Pa sed, until they kneeled in the dust & blood of the arena & begged for mercy. It was a pretty site, sed Pa, to see them in the dust & blood of the arena. Long live me, sed Pa, long live me, the undefeeted champion.

How does it cum, sed Ma, that such a grate champeen as you never won a argument from a frail wife. Bekaus it always seemed a shame to hit you, sed Pa, beekaus I cuddent bear to hit you. But if you want to join issues with me, sed Pa, & if you want to feel the delight of my right, cum on, you chickling.

Then Ma got a hold of Pa by the place where she always grabs him, wich is the ear, & she led him across the room & she made him set down to the tabel & she made him eet his dinner.

Then Pa began to talk about himself sum more, & he called himself names. You call me cheef, Pa sed to Ma, & you will do well to call him cheef who has defeeted the Kid Broad & Yung Corbett. If there be one in all pure humber, Pa sed, wich dares to face me on the blood red field, let him be on the list.

& yet I was not always thus, sed Pa. No, Ma sed, you was not always thus. Hevings knows. Tell me not about what you was.

It was like this, sed Pa. I walked up to Jack O'Brien wen he sed I had dubbed crossed him, & then I was about to make him Jim Blace stepped in & stopped the unequal conflict.

Then Ma began to look at Pa kind of funny, & she sed to Pa, How is it that you dident insult Leech Cross too. I think you better go to bed. Sailor Burke, sed Ma, & Pa went to bed.
